F. D. R. Swings to Republican Plank on World Affairs

INITIAL DRAFT FOR POST-WAR LEAGUE READY

Hull Calls Big Three to Conference.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 30.—Executing a flank movement on Gov. Dewey, leading Republican Presidential candidate, President Roosevelt today came out for an international organization to preserve peace, without surrender of American sovereignty or independence of action. Mr. Roosevelt's stand is virtually an indorsement of the Republican declaration adopted at Mackinac Island last September.

Gov. Dewey, in his New York speech to the newspaper publishers, went overboard for internationalism without attaching thereto any reservation of American sovereignty. The internationalists immediately took the New York governor to their bosoms with effusive enthusiasm. The nationalists, who stand for international coöperation without surrender of sovereignty, were correspondingly chilled.

Bricker's Stock Booms.

Almost immediately Gov. Bricker of Ohio, Dewey's chief opponent for the Republican nomination, leaped into the breach with a speech supporting the nationalistic doctrine with the result that his candidacy has been gaining tremendous momentum, particularly in the middle west, the stronghold of nationalism.

Now comes Mr. Roosevelt, who, if not completely deserting the internationalists, takes the position that the nationalists were dissatisfied with Dewey for failing to take.

The President took this stand barely 48 hours after Gov. Green of Illinois predicted at the governors' meeting at Hershey, Pa., that Mr. Roosevelt will become "more and more nationalistic as the election approaches" and will "rediscover the United States of America." The Illinois governor thought the President would go nationalistic because the "voice of the midwest has spoken" in the Mackinac charter which "prescribes a basis for the coöperation of nations of good will for the maintenance of peace, with the preservation of the sovereignty of each nation."

Conference Called.

The President embraced the chief tenet of nationalism at his press conference following the issuance of invitations by Secretary of State Hull to Great Britain, Russia, and China to discuss the establishment of an international organization to preserve peace. Mr. Roosevelt held forth for 20 minutes on his views of ways and means of attaining this objective.

The President in response to a question said he feels he was wholly justified in espousing the league of nations in 1919, but now he is working along somewhat different lines to unite the nations if it be humanly possible to prevent World War III. In 1914 the allies fought a war to end all war—a new experience in those days. That effort got wretchedly involved in politics. Today we are a little bit older, the President observed, and we are not saying that we can end all war for all time but merely trying to do what can be done feasibly, working with other nations, to build up some sort of organization to preserve world peace.

Collaboration Main Object.

The objective today, said Mr. Roosevelt, is to establish some machinery of collaboration with other nations on the prevention of war. This does not mean, the President emphasized, that the independence or integrity of the United States or its administrative processes would be impaired in any shape or form.

The nations, Mr. Roosevelt went on, would merely work together so closely that any nation or group of nations that might start to grab territory or invade another country would be stopped before it could get started. In working for this end the President said that he and Mr. Hull have been trying to eliminate domestic policies. That is why Mr. Hull consulted a committee of senators representing all parties, who

POLES IMPLORE F. D. R. TO HELP SAVE HOMELAND

Buffalo, N. Y., May 30 (AP).—The Polish-American congress, claiming to represent 5 million Americans of Polish descent, today appealed to President Roosevelt "not to permit the United States to be involved in designs against Poland and its future, whether in the east or in the west."

Delegates to the congress adopted a memorial to the President on a voice vote which further said:

"America need not surrender her ideals and principles, or appease any of her allies by accepting exigencies which violate our honor or sense of justice.

"We hold that the comradeship in arms imposes upon the United States full moral responsibility, not only for our own deeds but also for the deeds and aims of our allies."

Opponent Booed as Red.

Before the memorial was approved, Adam Kujtkowski of Hamtramck, Mich., attempted to speak in opposition. He was booed by numerous delegates, some of whom shouted "Communist." Several delegates surrounded him and sergeants at arms escorted him from the convention hall to restore order.

The memorial to President Roosevelt asserted Russia's rejection of the offer of the United States of mediation in the Russian-Polish boundary dispute "causes serious apprehension in our minds and grave fears that the peace is endangered and our mission in Europe jeopardized."

The delegates appealed to Mr. Roosevelt "to accept no compromise incompatible with the honor and tradition of this country, nor to accept facts accomplished by injustice and violence."

Right to Liberty Told.

"The subjugation of half of Poland would be a great injustice," the memorial continued. "Poland deserves well of the United States. Poland has the right to be free, independent, and to have her territorial integrity maintained.

"Poland has the right to liberty and full sovereignty—a right so dearly purchased and so well earned. The occupation and retention of Polish soil by invading Russian armies would establish an accomplished fact that undoubtedly would disturb the future of Europe and would be in total disregard of international morality and justice."

Chicagoan Heads Congress.

Permanent organization of the congress was effected yesterday when 2,257 delegates, said by officials to represent 1,063 Polish-American social, civic and fraternal organizations in 22 states, approved a constitution avowedly "to deepen the coöperation of our democracy with the democratic republic of Poland."

Delegates elected the following officers of the congress: President, Charles Rozmarek, Chicago, who has been convention chairman; vice-presidents, Honorota B. Wolowska, Chicago; Maximilian F. Wegrzynek, New York City; Dr. Theofil A. Starzynski, Pittsburgh, Pa.; John Mikuta, Scranton, Pa., and Frank Januszewski, Detroit, Mich.; treasurer, John J. Olejniczak, Chicago, and secretary, Stanislaus A. Gutowski, Newark, N. J.

F.D.R. FAVORS FREE PORTS FOR JEWISH REFUGEES

Washington, D. C., May 30 (AP).—President Roosevelt said today he liked the idea of establishing free ports for Jewish refugees—but that he did not particularly care for that name.

He said the United States is working on the Jewish refugee question now, but added it is not necessary that the discussion of havens be limited to the United States, observing that there are lots of other places where people could be received.

Polish President Designate to Be Named in Few Days

LONDON, May 30 (AP).—Poland's exiled government—the thorniest problem of allied diplomatic relations—will name a new president designate within a few days to succeed Gen. Kazimierz Sosnkowski. Identity of the choice was undisclosed, but reportedly he would be chosen from outside immediate Polish government circles here and probably would be a middle-of-the-roader.

BRICKER CALLS FOR SOUND U. S. FISCAL POLICY

End of Burocratic Rule Demanded.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hershey, Pa., May 30. — Gov. Bricker of Ohio, one of the leading contenders for the Republican nomination for President, told the annual conference of governors here tonight that the federal government should set its financial house in order as one realistic approach to post-war problems of reconverting industry to peace time production and providing jobs for returning soldiers.

Gov. Bricker.

He declared America's power to help the world when the war ends and to collaborate on preserving peace will depend on how strong it becomes itself in a return to private enterprise and opportunity. Bricker's theme was "tax and fiscal policy," a subject in which he is a specialist.

Urges End of Burocracy.

He said that to keep America from the wreckage of its economy, its established form of government, and its standard of living, control must be taken from burocracy, built up by high taxation, and brought back to home rule conditions. He said federal taxes should be reduced as soon as possible after the war and declared federal handouts and subsidies make a sham of state and local government.

"In my judgment, the pre-war federal policy of spend, waste, borrow, and tax will wreck American economy if continued in the post-war period," he said. "A nation which builds its financial house upon shifting sands of deficit financing in peace time, cannot survive as a nation."

The Ohio governor emphasized again and again that to deal with post-war world conditions America must be strong in its internal economy as well as its national defense.

Early Action Favored.

"We cannot safely predict the end of the war," he said, "but I think it is the part of wisdom, in developing our post-war plans, to assume that the axis powers may see at any time that they have nothing to gain by further resistance. There is much to do. Nothing would be more encouraging to the American people than some sub-

Bataan Sister in Dixie Fights to Rid South of New Deal

Summit, Miss., May 30 [Special].—A sister's letter to her soldier brother, who she believes still lives altho the war department has listed him as dead, in the Philippines, appeared today on the front page of the Summit Sun. The two column open letter was written by Mrs. Mary Dawson Cain, editor and publisher of the weekly newspaper in this southeastern Mississippi town.

She recalled to her missing brother, Sgt. Eugene Dawson of the army air forces, incidents of their childhood and events that have been taking place recently in the home town. She told him particularly of the growing sentiment in the south against President Roosevelt and his New Deal, and warned that "if we don't get rid of him . . . there won't be anything to come home to except a south in Communistic hands."

Elected Party Delegate.

Last week Mrs. Cain was elected a delegate to the Mississippi state Democratic convention at Jackson on June 7 and was indorsed by Pike county as a candidate for national Democratic committeewoman from Mississippi.

It was also last week that the war department declared her brother dead inasmuch as neither the department nor his family has received news of him since the fall of Corregidor two years ago. Her nephew, Pvt. Charles Dawson III., 18, has been a prisoner of the Japanese since Corregidor was lost.

Excerpts from her letter to "Dearest Gene" follow:

"You would have been proud of Marmee [mother] if you could have seen her when that letter from the war department came. . . . She rallied like the soldier she is and, like the rest of us, decided the war department doesn't know any more than we do, so we intend to go on hoping as long as there's no positive assurance.

"Feel You Are Fighting."

"Somehow we have a feeling that you are up in those hills, fighting with the guerrillas, unconquered and unconquerable."

She recalled how he had loved rocks and flowers, had written poems "in that quaint way you have . . . and knew almost every operatic score you heard." She said she could recall other things that happened when he was small "but that would make it appear I lend credence to the belief of the war department that you are dead. I don't—not for a single moment!"

A Long, Hard Fight.

After telling him of her election and indorsement at the Pike county Democratic convention, she went on:

"It made me very happy, Gene, because this is my home and home county, and it hasn't been easy to fight Roosevelt and his New Deal while people have clung so blindly to him. The fight has been long and hard and is a long way from finished. . . .

"I no longer stand alone in the fight for the nation and the southland. I have never stood alone, of course, but during the days when people were afraid to speak out it was rather heartbreaking.

No Votes for F. D. R.

"Our cousin Carl's wife wrote the other day that he attended a meeting of his school board in Louisiana and, after the meeting, they took a vote on F. D. R. Not a single person was for him and 'you should have heard the discussion that followed,' she said. That was cheering, too.

"If we don't get rid of him, Geney honey, there is not much use in hoping that you still live. There won't be anything to come home to except a south in communistic hands and another fight on the home front. Because you couldn't stand the way we'll have to live if he's elected again. . . .

"But don't ever think the fight will end with his reëlection. The harmony howlers who keep crying for harmony, but on their own F. D. R. terms, will never see any real harmony in this country again until they help us push him out of office. We'll fight him to the end."

HIPPO IS BORN; BOY OR GIRL? MA WON'T TELL

A baby hippopotamus was born at the Brookfield zoo yesterday to Bebe, the mama, and Toto, the papa hippopotamus.

The infant weighs about 40 pounds, but whether it is a girl hippopotamus or a boy hippopotamus, zoo officials will be unable to learn for some time, because baby hippos live almost entirely under water.

Robert Bean, assistant zoo director, said the birth was about three months behind schedule.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, May 30.—Hundreds of bales of axis rubber salvaged from the sea by Brazilian fishermen have been purchased by the Brazilian rubber control department. One newspaper says the amount paid to date is $500,000.

BERN, Switzerland, May 30.—Vatican sources tonight indicated that Pope Pius XII. plans to make an "ultimate appeal" to spare Rome as the capital of Christianity in his broadcast address to the Sacred College of Cardinals on Friday.

JILT IN THE MAIL GETS YANK DOWN

'Dear John' Letters Are Not Ones He Wants.

BY HOWARD WHITMAN.
[By Wireless to the New York News and The Chicago Tribune.]

WITH AN INFANTRY REGIMENT, Somewhere in England, May 30.—Soldiers love to get letters, but not the wrong kind. The soldiers in this outfit are pretty sore about a certain type of epistle, known in the army as the "Dear John" letter.

It usually goes something like this:

"Dear John—This is very hard to tell you, but I know you'll understand. I hope we'll always remain friends, but it's only fair to tell you that I've become engaged to somebody else."

I talked to a few of the footsloggers in this regiment who have received "Dear John" letters from their girls back home. They feel pretty low about it. It is doubtful if the Nazis will ever hurt them as much.

What One Yank Thinks.

A kid from Staten Island whose sweetheart married a shipyard worker stated the case this way:

"You can't make a girl stay in love with you. Nobody's asking that. But any girl who calls herself an American ought to have the character—or call it patriotism—not to stab a soldier in the back. Let her at least wait until the guy gets back home before giving him the gate."

One of the boys in a tent near-by had a gal in a little town in Georgia. He bragged about her all the time and showed her picture around. He kept three pictures of her about his bunk and told me he never went to sleep without talking to those pictures for five minutes.

Couldn't Wait Any Longer.

"Two weeks ago I got a letter saying she had waited for me two years and couldn't wait any longer," he said. "She told me she had run off and married a bank clerk three months ago, but didn't have the guts to tell me right away."

Another soldier in the company I'm with—an older, married man—saved some money when this outfit moved out into the woods recently. He sent $200 home. He got a V-mail letter back from his wife thanking him for the money and saying she was going to use it to get a divorce.

"We don't enjoy being in the army. It ain't fun," one of the soldiers remarked, "but when those gals back home give us the gate for some 4-F or defense worker—that burns our hides."

BEAT OFF NAZI ATTACKS; TANKS BATTLE IN GUINEA

ADVANCED ALLIED HDQ., New Guinea, May 31 [Wednesday] (AP).—The first tank battle in the southwest Pacific war took place on Biak island Monday when the Japanese defenders of the Mokmer air field threw armored units mounting 75 mm. cannon at the American attacking infantry.

American tanks were brought up and with the aid of attack planes repulsed the Jap counter-drive, destroying eight of the enemy's tanks and inflicting heavy losses on the enemy, according to Gen. MacArthur's bulletin issued today.

But the Japs are entrenched in strong positions around the Mokmer strip and the Yanks were unable to drive them out.

"Sharp fighting is reported, with some ground changing hands several times," said the bulletin. At last reports the Yanks were still two miles from the air field.

Six Jap Planes Downed.

American destroyers and artillery pounded enemy positions near Mokmer and allied fighters and anti-aircraft gunners shot down six out of nine attacking Nipponese planes.

MacArthur's spokesman said the troops moving along the south coast of Biak have been held up by enemy fire from a plateau which commands the shoreline. The road along which the Americans advanced after capturing Bosnek village skirts cliffs until the terrain flattens out near Mokmer. On this open terrain the tanks shot it out.

At 6:30 a. m. Monday Japanese infantry of the 36th division made a furious attempt to ram the Americans out of the Mokmer area. "The enemy was repulsed with heavy losses," said the bulletin.

Then the Japs threw in their tanks.

Kill 50 Japs at Sarmi.

Another slow struggle was being waged 200 miles to the southeast on the Dutch New Guinea mainland near Sarmi, where since May 17 American forces have been trying to capture the incompleted Maffin airdrome.

There the Japanese, stifling opposing American bids for bases along the New Guinea shore route to the Philippines, likewise made a counterattack Sunday which was repulsed with 50 Japanese killed.

More than 100 miles farther southeast, in the invaded Hollandia sector, Yanks have been put ashore 10 miles west of Tannahmerah bay to cut off coastal escape routes for isolated bands of the enemy.

Planes Demolish Tanks.

Mitchells and Bostons swept in low in support of the soldiers on Biak, hitting tanks and gun positions. Japanese positions around Mokmer field were ripped by 80 tons of explosives. To the southwest on the Dutch New Guinea mainland, several parked planes were damaged on Japan's major base of Babo.

Around bypassed Wewak, where Japanese soldiers have been isolated by MacArthur's leapfrog stabs to the northwest, allied planes harassed the enemy with 90 tons of explosives.

Germans Warned

LONDON, May 30 (AP).—The Germans were told tonight that Rome is in peril of early capture by an allied "steamroller of terrific weight." Field Marshal Kesselring's southern Italian armies are menaced by allied leapfrog landings in the rear of the German positions, said a Berlin broadcast, which added, "The enemy stands at the gates of Rome."

ALLIED HDQ., Naples, May 30 (AP).—American and British troops ground yard by yard into the Nazis' final fortress wall south of Rome today, repelling scores of flaming counter-attacks as they made "satisfactory gains" thru the bristling Alban foothills within 16 miles of the Italian capital.

"We now stand on the threshold of Rome," said Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark, commander of the 5th army, in an address over the graves of American dead on the Anzio beachhead. "Before many days have passed we shall have freed this first of the European capitals from Nazi domination."

Nazis Keep Escape Open.

The Nazis were offering savage resistance in an effort to stem the immediate threat to Rome until the bulk of Field Marshal Kesselring's shattered 10th army could be withdrawn up the Via Casilina [highway No. 6] and along two secondary highways from its disastrous stand on the Adolf Hitler line.

In a front line dispatch filed at 7:30 p. m. Daniel de Luce of the Associated Press said tank led American troops had captured two ridges 500 yards apart after slugging all day in the midst of German strong points southwest of Lanuvio.

He said that Lanuvio, 16 miles southwest of Rome, was smoking from a day long allied artillery barrage, but that defenses of the fortified hilltop town still were unbroken.

"Struggle of Attrition."

"It is more a struggle of attrition than annihilation, at least in its present aspects," De Luce said of the battle. "The 5th army's prolonged attacks obviously are draining Kesselring's reserves."

German Ferdinands — self-propelled guns that hit and run—took a heavy toll of American armor in the Campoleone sector today.

"I counted five of our tanks afire up there a while ago," said Sgt. Michael Knapp, Waterloo, N. Y., and "for our armor I guess this is tougher than Kasserine pass."

[A British broadcast recorded in New York said last night the allies had captured Ardea, five miles southwest of the American held Campoleone station and three miles from the Tyrrhenian coast.]

Rome Hears Battle Sounds.

From enemy sources came word that the sounds of battle were becoming hourly more clear as the allied drive crawled relentlessly toward the outskirts of the Eternal City.

Reënforced by the bulk of the reorganized Hermann Goering parachute division and supported by intensified artillery fire, the Nazis continued to stave off the American drive on Valmontone, a key stronghold of the new "last ditch" line 20 miles southeast of Rome.

Two days ago Yank infantry and tanks were reported within 2,000 yards of the town.

The German counter-attacks around Artena, two miles south of Valmontone, appeared directed at saving Valmontone, which lies on the Via Casilina at the intersection of a lateral road to Lanuvio.

Road Under Artillery Fire.

The Via Casilina still was under intense American artillery fire, however, and its use to the long enemy convoys of material and men streaming before the 8th army was thought to have been greatly impaired.

German counter-attacks also had temporarily checked American infantry on the rolling meadows before Lanuvio and before Velletri, two other strong points in the enemy's last natural defenses before Rome.

Armored allied spearheads consolidated gains west of the Anzio-Albano road and advanced toward the western coastal anchor of the German line at Campo Iemini, 18 miles due south of Rome.

In their methodical, destructive pursuit of withdrawing German forces from the southeast, 8th army troops captured the key road town of Arce after two days of hard fighting and thrust on toward the provincial capital of Frosinone, some 45 air line miles from Rome.

Behind barriers of demolished bridges, culverts and extensive minefields, the Germans fled both northward along highway No. 82 toward Avezzano and northwestward along the Via Casilina. French troops closed in on Frosinone from the south.

[Tuesday's German high command bulletin said the French had penetrated the town of Ceccano, five miles south of Frosinone.]

Many German Dead.

Should Frosinone, an ancient city of more than 20,000 normal population, fall to the allies, German troops remaining in the Sacco and Cosa valleys would have only one secondary road left to accommodate their huge withdrawal toward the new line—a narrow road built to handle one-way traffic.

Lynn Heinzerling of the Associated Press, who witnessed the storming of Arce, 12 miles down the Via Casilina from Frosinone, said "the hills around Arce were littered with German dead, and the withdrawal to the north was made on a much smaller scale. The Liri valley just below the Via Casilina between Arce and Ceprano was littered with the blackened hulks of German tanks and burned-out remnants of German transport.

"In the fighting south of Arce," Heinzerling continued, "the Germans decided to pull out during the night, apparently assuming the British were not expecting it. Instead, when the Germans started to move, an artillery barrage which reëchoed thru the valley most of the night fell on the hapless parachutists. Burial squads were busy today putting away the rearguard specialists who stayed too long."

Shelled by French Cruiser.

Allied fighter-bombers added at least 100 more enemy vehicles to the approximately 3,000 they had destroyed or badly damaged. Fifth army troops counted 211 Nazi vehicles knocked out and abandoned along one seven mile stretch of highway. In all, the Mediterranean air forces again flew more than 3,000 sorties Monday, losing 20 heavy bombers and 14 other craft and destroying 68 German planes.

A French cruiser again supported the 5th army's advance from the beachhead by slipping close to shore and bombarding enemy positions.

Prisoners captured by the 5th army alone rose to nearly 12,000, including 5,300 seized in the drive from the Anzio beachhead. The 8th army was known to have taken thousands more.

GERMAN WAR REPORT

Tuesday's German war bulletin as broadcast from Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press said:

"The focal point of the enemy's big attack yesterday [Monday] was at the extreme west part of the Italian front from the coast up to the area of the Alban mountains. The enemy who attacked here with masses of infantry and tank forces succeeded at some points in making local dents which, however, were immediately ironed out or sealed off in counter-attacks. Twenty-five enemy tanks were destroyed here.

"East of Velletri numerous enemy attacks launched in battalion strength were foiled. South and southwest of Valmontone our troops repulsed attacks made by the enemy with concentrated forces.

"In continuation of their counter-attacks our troops regained further ground. In the area on both sides of Ceccano the enemy attacked our positions with superior forces and succeeded in penetrating the village stubbornly defended by our rear-guards.

"East of the Sacco river 22 enemy tanks were destroyed when German troops repulsed enemy attacks at Pofi."

GEN. TRUSCOTT CHIEF OF ALLIED ARMY AT ANZIO

Named After Big Nazi Counter-Blow.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH 5TH ARMY BEACHHEAD FORCES, in Italy, May 30.—It is possible now to disclose that Maj. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott Jr. was supreme field commander of allied troops on the Anzio beachhead from mid-February until Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark arrived to direct the present offensive which began on May 23.

Maj. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott.

Truscott formerly led the American 3d infantry division in Sicily and Italy and is credited with having made it into one of the best fighting units in the American army, as was its World War I. predecessor which battled so gallantly at the Marne.

Truscott brought the 3d division to the beachhead on the original landing day, Jan. 22. It was part of our 6th corps which was then commanded by another American major general.

Question of Early Action.

There always will be questions as to whether the latter acted too cautiously in not thrusting deeper inland after our landing caught the enemy by surprise, and whether the decision to contain ourselves in the small sector was his or that of a higher level of command.

At any rate, that first 6th corps commander was relieved after the second German counter-attack on our beach holdings and was succeeded by Truscott. The brunt of the third enemy counter-attack late in February was thrown against Truscott's old division.

So well had he trained it and so well versed in combat was that 3d division that it held off four German divisions. Later Gen. Alexander, marveling at that defensive stand, asked the general who followed Truscott in command of the 3d division: "And you didn't give an inch?"

In Charge of Regrouping.

Truscott has been in command on the beachhead all the time during regrouping and resupplying of the 6th corps in a period when it was passing from a defensive force into one poised for the attack now in progress.

Truscott, a handsome gray haired man now 49 years old, is regarded by his men as "a soldier's soldier." His shiny helmet, riding boots, and battered leather jacket are a familiar sight to front line G. I.'s and the high command regards him as one of the shrewdest and most thoro tacticians in the army.

His career in the present war began in May, 1942, when as a brigadier general [his permanent rank is lieutenant colonel] he was assigned as American representative on Adm. Mountbatten's combined operations staff in England. Our first Ranger force trained under his supervision and he was the ranking American officer on the Dieppe raid.

Captured Port Lyautey.

At the beginning of the African campaign he led the task force which captured Port Lyautey.

Truscott was born in Texas and spent his early manhood as a country school teacher in Oklahoma. He was commissioned out of the first officers' training camp in 1917 and is one of the few combat generals in the American army who is not a West Point graduate.

His wife, a daughter, Mary, and a son, James, live at Charlottesville, Va. Another son, Lucian III., is in his second year at West Point.

U. S. CHIEF OF STAFF'S STEPSON KILLED IN BATTLE NEAR ROME

Washington, D. C., May 30 (AP).—The war has hit home in the family of the United States' ranking army officer with the death in battle of Lt. Allen Tupper Brown, 27, son of Mrs. George C. Marshall. The tank officer, whose mother married the chief of staff in 1930, was killed at 10 a. m. Monday while forces from the Anzio beachhead were driving toward Rome. The action was near Campoleone.

Lt. Allen T. Brown.

Brown was the youngest of Mrs. Marshall's three children. He was born June 16, 1916, in Baltimore where his father, the late Clifton Stevenson Brown, was an attorney.

Educated at private preparatory schools and at the University of Virginia, Lt. Brown was employed by the New York Times promotion department from 1936 to 1940, and was in advertising work with station WGNY, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., from 1940 to 1942.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMORED FORCES IN THE LANUVIO-CAMPOLEONE SECTOR, Italy, May 30.—Five times the Germans counter-attacked today with heavy tanks, self-propelled guns, and infantry—and five times our armor and artillery hurled them back as we crashed up to the approaches of what appears to be one of their strongest positions southeast of Rome.

This defensive bulwark is in a series of dry river beds running northeast from the Rome-bound railroad three miles beyond Campoleone and five miles below Lake Albano.

Our Gen. Sherman tanks had passed the mine belt area but today they were running into rows of pillboxes and the enemy kept sallying forth with Mark IVs, Mark Vs, and Mark VIs and 88 mm. cannon mounted on half-tracks while his infantry sniped at us.

Bullets Sing Around General.

One of our generals had a close call and had to crawl on his hands and knees from a little ridge with enemy bullets singing around him.

The tank men called for heavy artillery support. Nine batteries of our guns gave it to them, cracking into the pillbox area and knocking out several enemy tanks.

There were individual armor duels all thru the sector. I watched one Sherman and one Mark VI slugging it out. Both tanks were damaged and the Mark VI finally turned for home. He didn't get there. One of our Long Tom [155 mm. rifle] shells broke him apart a few yards from where he began his retreat.

Others of our big guns kept up the fierce pummelling of Lanuvio which sits on a hillside and was wreathed in the mists of explosions most of the day.

Command in Safer Quarters.

The armored force general whose command post yesterday had been in a bomb crater near a road intersection was in safer quarters today—to his disgust but to his staff's relief. As yesterday, he was tops again today in efficiency and profanity. He wasn't wearing a helmet. He had on a brown stocking cap.

He was fuming as he stalked about the shell-torn house because the German gully line was so tough to crack. He gave out a flock of unprintable language to one of his colonels who had a tank unit out too far on the flank and had erred slightly in furnishing the "coordinate" for one of our artillery targets. The general called off that shelling in time.

"But you —— ——," he roared over the telephone, "you might have had some of your men killed by our own guns. Get that ——coördinate right this time."

This time the colonel got the "coordinate" in the right spot and a few minutes later our artillery barrage came raining down where it was supposed to.

Planes Collide in Canal Zone; Pilots Use Chutes

BALBOA, Canal Zone, May 30 (AP).—Two 6th air force pursuit planes crashed head-on at an estimated combined speed of 500 miles an hour Saturday, but the pilots parachuted without injury from 1,500 feet, it was announced today. The pilots, Capt. William S. Chairsell, Richmond, Va., and Lt. James R. Paley, Ames, Ia., are believed to be the only flyers in the Panama canal area to survive such an accident. The pilots were flying again next day.

2,400 RUSSIANS FLOOD U. S. WITH SOVIET IDEAS

Propaganda Corps Gets Diplomatic Status.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 30.—In the apparent conviction that the European conflict is in its final stages and the post-war struggle for world political and economic control close at hand, soviet Russia has established in this hemisphere one of the greatest propaganda agencies in history, congressional investigators reported today.

They disclosed that an army of 3,700 "diplomatic agents," 2,400 of them in the United States, is busily engaged in furthering soviet interests in industry, trade, business, finance, education, and entertainment in the two Americas.

When Germany has been subdued, observers cognizant of this situation noted, Russia will be free to pursue its expansionist policy in North and South America while the United States is occupied with the war against Japan. Stalin has obviously no intention, they asserted, of turning against Japan despite the immense aid we have extended him in the war against Germany.

Headquarters in Mexico.

Hemispheric headquarters for the soviet propagandists have been set up in Mexico City. Ultimas Noticias, one of the biggest Mexican daily newspapers, recently carried the announcement that "Mexico is about to be converted into the most important center for the distribution of Communist propaganda for the United States, Canada, and all America. For this purpose, there has been brought to Mexico one of the most modern presses and the most varied sets of type, worth a million pesos."

There has significantly been no denial of the paper's statement that "the soviet embassy here [Mexico City] will have charge of the printing, vigilance, and distriubution of all propaganda long before the war ends."

U. S. Facilitates Movements.

The movements of 1,300 additional agents in Latin and South America have been facilitated by our government spending agencies in the "good neighbor" countries, according to the reports.

Impressed by the value of the motion picture as a propaganda weapon, soviet efforts have been centered in the Hollywood picture colony for many months. Mikhail Kalatozov, admitted to this country as "a diplomatic representative of the motion picture trust of the soviet union," has been busy since last fall cementing ties of friendship with the movie moguls and has put before the state department a proposal to confer an armload of soviet decorations on certain members of the colony.

For their parts in making "Mission to Moscow" and "North Star," two motion pictures lauding the soviets, and other valuable coöperation, the following have been listed as worthy of the Order of Lenin or some similar testimonial of official gratitude:

Typical Incident.

The investigators reported details of an incident illustrating administration coöperation in the construction of the soviet propaganda army. This involved Jesus Hernandes, former minister of education of the Spanish Loyalist government, who fled to Russia when Franco gained the upper hand in Spain. Hernandes landed at Seattle some time ago without a passport.

Under usual procedure he would have been detained, but Atty. Gen. Biddle permitted him to go to Mexico under official escort. He is now stationed in the soviet embassy at Mexico City, one of the leaders of the propaganda forces in the headquarters there.

In every branch of American trade, finance and education, the soviet agents are constantly working, the investigators reported, establishing a base for the post-war campaign. These activities are officially separate from the Communist efforts to take over the Democratic party demonstrated in the operations of the Communist dominated CIO political action committee.

NIMITZ' PLANES POUND SAIPAN IN MARIANAS ISLES

Second Attack Made by Land Bombers.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, May 30 (AP).—Striking 638 miles north of Truk on the road to Tokyo, American bombers pounded Saipan Island, strong enemy base in the Marianas Islands, during daylight Monday.

Twelve enemy fighters, the navy said today, sought to intercept the land based bombers. Two of the enemy were shot down and two were damaged.

Meet Artillery Fire.

The bombing flight encountered moderate anti-aircraft fire from heavy artillery. It was the second time land based bombers had attacked that enemy position. Saipan has also been attacked by carrier based planes.

The navy reported also another assault on Shumushu Island at the northern end of the North Pacific Kurile Island chain. Only meager anti-aircraft fire was encountered by navy search planes.

Marshalls Hit Again.

Continuation of the assaults on the Marshall Islands also was reported. Runways, barracks, and anti-aircraft batteries were hit.

A record 101 ton daylight raid on Ponape, eastern guardian of Truk atoll, was announced Monday by Adm. Nimitz. The unprecedented attack was made Saturday by Liberator and Mitchell bombers.

ALLIES CUT ROAD BETWEEN 2 JAP BASES IN BURMA

SOUTHEAST ASIA HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, May 30 (AP).—American and Chinese forces in a surprise blow at Japanese defenses in north Burma have severed the road connecting Kamaing and Mogaung, main enemy bases in the upper Mogaung valley, it was announced today.

Allied air forces supporting this thrust rained bombs and bullets on roads and the rail line leading thru the Irrawaddy valley, up which the Japanese have been sending reinforcements to protect their positions, which are imperiled from Kamaing to Myitkyina, 40 miles east.

The by-passing of Kamaing left that strong point in peril, for its road to Mogaung, 20 miles south and east, was its main route of supply.

Lt. Gen. Stilwell's troops made some progress in the battle for Myitkyina, advancing 600 yards in a drive from the west and beating off Japanese counter-attack south and southwest of the town.

Chinese Take Village.

Chinese forces driving to the west from southwest China in a campaign designed to hook up with Stilwell's troops, seized the village of Lengshuikuo in a battle above the clouds on the Mamien trail leading to Tengchung, seat of Japanese operations in Yunnan province, said Chungking dispatches.

Tengchung, 70 miles southeast of Myitkyina across the border, itself was attacked by American medium bombers and fighters, Stilwell's bulletin said.

The Chinese high command, announcing the success in the 8,000 foot elevation sector of Lengshuikuo, said 200 Japanese were killed and Chaikungtang, "last enemy pocket on the Mamien trail," was surrounded and its fall imminent.

Bomb Burma Road.

Clearing weather permitted air forces to go to the support of Chinese troops elsewhere on the Salween river front. Bombers dropped 28 tons of bombs on Japanese positions on the Burma road, and Liberators sank a 1,700 ton freighter and damaged a large cargo vessel in a convoy off Hainan Island.

The southeast Asia headquarters bulletin said that in the Manipur hills below Imphal the Japanese were surrounded and eliminated at several points, with many guns and much equipment captured. Counter-attacks by the recently reinforced enemy south of Kohima were repulsed.

FLEETS OF 3,200 PLANES RIP NAZIS FROM TWO SIDES

Aircraft Plants, Fields Among Many Targets.

LONDON, May 30 (AP).—American air forces hurled approximately 3,200 planes against Germany's aircraft factories, air bases, and transportation centers today, striking from Britain and Italy for the second day in a row.

One fleet of 2,200 heavy bombers and fighters from British bases smashed at least a dozen targets in Germany, France, and Belgium. A force, about 1,000 strong, from bases in Italy attacked the Linz and Wiener Neustadt area of Austria.

Targets of British Force.

Of the great American air armada, 11 bombers and 9 fighters were lost while 66 enemy aircraft were destroyed.

The great daylight force from Britain bombed airplane factories at Dessau, Oschersleben and Halberstadt, Germany; rail yards at Brussels, Belgium, and Reims and Troyes, France; and air bases in Germany at Handorf, Diepholz, Halberstadt, and in the Hamburg area.

Among the Handorf raiders was Sgt. Victor Wettour, a top turret gunner, of 5656 Augusta blvd., Chicago.

The Americans from Mediterranean bases hit aircraft factories three miles southeast of Wiener Neustadt, and spinning mills in the same region.

While Liberators escorted by Lightnings were making these raids, unescorted Flying Fortresses based in Italy hit railyards at Zagreb, Yugoslavia, and an aircraft factory and airdrome at Wels, 10 miles southwest of Linz, Austria.

Raids Go on in Evening.

The heavy bomber operations were only part of the day's assault from Britain. At supper time a big force of American planes crossed Dover strait toward Boulogne, and a heavy raid on the French coast was reported.

This was the second big tactical assault of the day, Marauders, Havocs, Thunderbolts, and British fighter bombers having earlier attacked bridges and rail installations of the occupied countries, radio facilities, and various military targets.

NAZIS ATTACK, PUT WEDGE IN RUSSIAN LINE IN ROMANIA

LONDON, May 30 (AP).—German forces north of Iasi, Romania, opened an attack today "with large forces of tanks and infantry," Moscow announced tonight, breaking a six week lull on the main eastern front and denting the lines of the Red army. The Russian bulletin called the break "an insignificant wedge into our defenses" and asserted it was obtained at the cost of heavy losses in men and material.

"According to preliminary data, our troops disabled or destroyed 50 enemy tanks and brought down 36 planes in the day's fighting," Moscow said.

The Germans made no mention of any ground fighting on the eastern front, but a later Berlin broadcast mentioned "heavy German air attacks today on the front areas in the Iasi area as well as on the enemy's rear communications."

NAZI LINES TORN UP

BY E. R. NODEBER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 30.—During the last 10 days more than 25,000 sorties have been flown by pilots of the allied expeditionary air force in attacks on air fields and the communications networks which supply German armies in western Europe.

Reports by reconnaissance pilots reveal transport systems in the enemy occupied countries have sustained heavy damage by the daily pounding by bombers and fighter-bombers.

Freight yards, bridges, arterial highways, power stations, and railroad rolling stock rank high on the target priority list of this outfit, which includes the American 9th air force. The 9th fighter command which, upon arrival here last fall from the middle east, functioned as escorts for heavy bombers, now concentrates on bombing, using Mustangs, Lightnings, and Thunderbolts.

Cause Rail, Road Bottlenecks.

Serious bottlenecks are said to have been created in rail communications in many parts of northwest Europe, leading to increased German use of canals. Pilots report that damage to first class roads has caused heavy motor traffic to be diverted to second and third class routes. Local lines now carry much of Germany's rail traffic which otherwise would have been routed on main lines.

The French transport system has been affected the most. In the neighborhood of Amiens, Creil, Liege, Mons, and Tours it has been dislocated by the attacks of the last two weeks. Little traffic is reported on the Amiens-Creil road, the main highway from Calais and Boulogne to Paris.

Le Havre's chief connection with the capital has been broken by raged bridges near Rouen. The Brussels-Calais-Abbeville-Lille routes are similarly affected.

Local Lines Carry Big Loads.

In a recent fighter sweep a three mile long convoy of trucks was successfully attacked near Doullens. On another occasion 100 vehicles on a road from Soignies to Mons were blasted. The railways are the hardest hit, however, the system between Toulon and Paris having been cut again and again.

Attacks on bridges, stations, and junctions, particularly at Cambrai, Rouen, Amiens, Mons, Tours, Douae, Juvisy, Creil, Le Mans, and Rennes have forced the enemy to add extra pressure to overburdened local tracks.

The shortage of rolling stock, which the Germans desperately need, has been accentuated by raids on rail yards.

Today's blow at German war targets by nearly 1,000 United States heavy bombers and 1,200 fighters means that probably 10,000 allied aircraft have hit enemy targets since Saturday morning.

IRISH ELECTION COUNTING TO BE STARTED TODAY

DUBLIN, May 30 (AP).—Normal voting was recorded today in Ireland's general election, called by Prime Minister Eamon De Valera to settle a domestic dispute, but which his opponents charged was an excuse for trying to give him a majority in parliament.

Only from 65 to 75 per cent of eligible voters participated, due largely to the ban on use of automobiles and other transportation difficulties. The count will begin tomorrow, but results are not expected to be known before Friday or Saturday.

De Valera called for the election last month after a transport bill was defeated, prompting opponents to say he was after a "party dictatorship." While De Valera's Fianna Fail party has the most seats—67—the four others together control 71 places.

JAPS BREACH 2D CHINESE LINE ON CHANGSHA FRONT

CHUNGKING, China, May 30 (AP).—Japanese forces who landed on the southeastern shore of Lake Tungting have breached the Chinese second line of defense at the Milo river 40 miles north of Changsha, the Chinese high command acknowledged tonight. Other advances were scored by the enemy on a 15 mile front below the Sinchiang river.

Enemy gains were reported also in supporting operations both east and west of Lake Tungting, in northern Hunan province, and casualties were heavy as the Chinese battled to hold the invaders from Changsha, the provincial capital.

The Japanese were estimated unofficially to have massed 12 divisions for the attempt to reconquer the Hankow-Canton railway, nine in the Hankow-Yochow area, and three in the Canton region to the south. The three divisions in the Canton area, however, still were idle.

Bombers Get So Hot They Have to Be Given Showers

LONDON, May 30 (AP).—Flying weather was so hot today that aircraft of the British 2d tactical air force had to be cooled with pails of water before ground crews could handle them. Pilots flying in a minimum of clothing said the cockpits became so hot metal fittings burned them.

IRISH PRISONER SEES 76 DIG OUT OF GERMAN CAMP

47 Reported Shot After Their Recapture.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, May 30.—An Irish royal air force officer has just returned from Stalag Luft 3, the German prison camp from which 47 British and allied officers who attempted a mass escape were shot. He asserted today that the men were not killed while fleeing from the camp itself.

The officer is Flight Lt. Vincent Byrne, 29, of Wicklow, Eire, who after four years in German prison camps was repatriated last week with several hundred other British, American, Canadian and allied prisoners of war. Since his return he has made a full report to British authorities.

Has Brother Living in Chicago.

Byrne who has a brother, Dan, living in Chicago, was the second prisoner sent to Stalag Luft 3 when it was opened two years ago. He remained in the camp, which is in lower Silesia near the Polish border, until his recent repatriation. He knew the full details of the mass escape attempt and his story differed in several important details from previous hearsay versions.

Prisoners in Stalag Luft 3 began planning their escape more than a year ago. They dug a tunnel 200 yards long thru camp and under the barbed wire on its perimeters.

The tunnel was sunk 75 feet underground because the soil on the camp site was sandy and was likely to cave in and because the Germans have microphones strung along the barbed wire of the camp enclosure to detect scraping sounds. Fifty other tunnels were dug before this one, Byrne said.

Fired On by Guards.

"Where we hid the sand from the tunnel is still a secret," he added.

When the tunnel was completed lots were drawn for the privilege of escaping.

The first man crawled into the tunnel about 9 p. m. Seventy-six men passed thru during the night, but some were discovered by the Germans emerging from the tunnel about 5 a. m. The guards fired several shots but hit no one.

Gestapo, police and German local defense forces began searching the countryside. Eventually about 50 were rounded up and taken to jail at Gestapo headquarters. Fourteen of the original 76 have not yet been captured so far as is known here.

"Shot Resisting Arrest."

The men who were subsequently returned to the camp reported that they were submitted to a mild questioning by the Gestapo. Then one day trucks drew up to the jail. Forty-seven men were taken from jail, manacled and driven away. The men still in the jail heard no shots or commotion of any kind. They know nothing of what happened to their comrades except for the German statements.

The Germans said they were shot while resisting arrest or attempting to organize another escape, said Lt. Byrne.

Byrne, who volunteered in the R. A. F., was shot down over France in 1940. Besides Dan Byrne, a second brother, F. G., lives in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Nazis Say Fire and Flood Will Meet Allied Invaders

Invasion Weather

LONDON, May 30 (AP)—Temperature over Dover strait dropped eight degrees tonight under influence of a northeasterly breeze, but at 9:30 p. m. the temperature was 63. Visibility was good in spite of a ground haze and flecks of clouds in the sky. High tide at Calais will be at 8:38 p. m. tomorrow and 9:23 a. m. Thursday.

LONDON, May 30 (AP).—German propagandists told today of plans to combat invasion by flood and fire, of assigning flying repair squadrons to keep bombed communications open, and of salvaging trains from the scrap heap to keep supply lines running.

The scheme of scorching the earth ahead of allied armies—to include "setting fire to vegetation" in "extreme emergencies"—coincided with a fire fighting talk given the European underground in the fifth of a series of broadcasts by supreme allied headquarters.

A spokesman for Gen. Eisenhower told the underground to keep its fire fighting units ready because the danger of fire in the battle zones would be great not only from allied bombs and artillery but "from German incendiarism."

Urges First Aid Crews.

He also reminded them to be ready with first aid since "the war may well pass quickly and leave its casualties behind."

German or German controled radios quit their guessing game of when the blows would come from the west and returned to the theme that the Nazis were "fully prepared," as the Transocean propaganda agency put it.

Here are some of the things these propagandists were saying:

An experimental area has been built, modeled somewhat on the Dutch-Flemish coast, to determine the best ways to flood areas along the Atlantic wall.

Flying repair squads have been set up "in all corners of German occupied Europe" to repair bomb damage to communications and "trains which were about to be used as scrap iron have been put back in service."

Scatter Forces to Meet Chutists.

Dr. Ganzen Mueller, "who distinguished himself in Russia by improvising a German system of communications," now is in charge of railways in the west, which have been pounded continually by allied bombers.

A neutral source said the German high command had spotted thousands of smaller military forces over France to meet an expected onslaught by thousands of allied airborne troops.

The feeling of invasion imminence has been heightened in Britain with the safe arrival of another convoy of American arms in this island already loaded with masses of troops and weapons.

Vichy radio, recording struggles of the Germans with the restless underground, said 55 French anti-Nazi "terrorists" had been arrested recently, and 17 were killed in clashes which resulted in death to two Hitler agents.

Algiers radio said five German infantry divisions and a motorized division had been sent to reënforce German troops in Bulgaria where Nazi concentrations now "resemble real occupuation."

GERMANS LYNCH 5 YANK AIRMEN, PAPER REPORTS

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, May 30 (AP).—American airmen who parachuted into three unnamed places in central Germany yesterday were "killed by agitated people," the newspaper Aftonbladet's Berlin correspondent said today in a dispatch passed by German censorship.

[The German radio denied five airmen were killed, but said one pilot who parachuted from a wrecked plane was "lynched" by inhabitants of a village after "civilians on their way to church" had been strafed by planes.]

The article gave no details, but the correspondent said he received the reports from "a traveler from Leipzig" with whom he talked in Berlin.

A later report said five American airmen had been killed.

Police Called Helpless.

"German police were unable to save them," Aftonbladet's correspondent wrote.

He said "a storm of rage" broke out Sunday "among German civilians" when American fighter pilots allegedly shot women and children during sweeps over Germany.

[Aftonbladet is listed by the Political Handbook of the World as a nonpartisan newspaper with "Nazi tendencies." Some observers saw in the lynching report the possibility of a German propaganda plant in an attempt to frighten American flyers. There was no confirmation of the Aftonbladet report from allied sources.]

Seen as "Eye for Eye" Rule.

Aftonbladet's report recalled German Propaganda Minister Goebbel's article in the Saturday issue of the Nazi newspaper Voelkischer Beobachter declaring that allied airmen bailing out over Germany no longer would have police and military protection against German civilians.

Aftonbladet then interpreted Goebbels' article as meaning that "American airmen who save themselves by parachute can consider themselves at the mercy of the people who find them, under the old rule, 'Eye for eye and tooth for tooth.'"

Granite City Flyer Bags Two More German Planes

LONDON, May 30 (AP).—Two of the more than 60 German planes shot down in today's widespread raids from Britain were bagged by Lt. Glennon T. Moran of Granite City, Ill. Lt. William Bryan of Flint, Mich., also destroyed two planes, while Capt. Robert Becker of Hollysdale, Cal., knocked down three. A Mustang group led by Maj. Irwin Dregne of Viroqua, Wis., shot down 17 and destroyed another aground. A single kill was scored by Capt. William Forehand of Kokomo, Ind.

SPAIN'S EXPORTS TO NAZIS STILL TOO HIGH: F. D. R.

Washington, D. C., May 30 (AP).—President Roosevelt expressed the opinion today that Spain's shipments of supplies to Germany have not been reduced enough yet, while Mrs. Roosevelt indicated a belief that Prime Minister Churchill's attitude toward the Franco government will not bind policy decisions of all the allied nations.

The prime minister last Wednesday said Spain had made a "contribution" to the allied nations' cause by resisting German pressure for an attack on Gibraltar to close the straits. He indicated a hands off policy on Spanish internal affairs.

Mr. Roosevelt at a press conference told reporters the Spanish have been sending things to Germany and, altho the volume has been cut down, it has not been cut down enough.

Asked about Churchill's speech, Mrs. Roosevelt said that what any one individual in the allied nations says or thinks "has to come into agreement with what all say or think before it becomes effective."

U.S. FORMULATES BLUEPRINT FOR POST-WAR GROUP

Hull Invites 'Big 3' Powers to Parley.

The President took pride in this procedure by which he is profiting from the mistake Woodrow Wilson made in ignoring the senate in the formulation of the league of nations covenant. It was at the conclusion of five conferences with the eight members of the foreign relations committee that Mr. Hull announced the initiation of discussions with the other powers on the post-war peace preservation program.

Praises Nonpartisanship.

So far, said Mr. Roosevelt, the discussions with the senate committee had proceeded on a high level of nonpartisanship. The whole pattern in 1944, he added, is different from that of 1914. There also have been discussions of the post-war peace plan in his meetings with British Prime Minister Churchill, Dictator Stalin of Russia, and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek at the Cairo and Teheran conferences.

The President said that matters have progressed so satisfactorily that he and Mr. Hull have a first rough draft of an agreement on the peace organization. He emphasized that it is only a first draft and that it undoubtedly will be battered as the discussions with the other powers proceed.

When a reporter asked whether the United States' proposals were "within the framework of the Mackinac declaration" by the Republican post-war advisory council, the President said he didn't know but that they would come mighty close to it.

[The G. O. P. pronouncement declared for responsible participation by this country in an organization to maintain peace but without impairing the nation's sovereignty.]

Of course, the President went on, we are taking ideas everywhere we can get them, even from what T. R. called the lunatic fringe. It was his experience that one gets some pretty good ideas at times from the lunatic fringe.

Could Hold Phone Parley.

Many ideas that emanated from the lunatic fringe in his boyhood, said Mr. Roosevelt, are common every day accepted things now.

The President was either ignorant of Mr. Hull's invitations to the powers or didn't visualize any sort of formal conference on the peace project. He said the discussions could take place even on the telephone.

"Will these discussions take place before or after the end of the war?" a reporter asked.

Mr. Roosevelt thought it made no difference.

No Willful Men.

A reporter remarked that this time there is no "little band of willful men" such as Wilson blamed for his troubles. The President agreed, saying he has known some fools for whom he was sorry, but there never was anybody he hated, despite what some newspaper men think his capacity for hate. Then he amended this to say that some he had hated are now dead.

Earlier in the day Mr. Hull extended invitations to Britain, Russia, and China to participate in the discussion of the post-war peace establishment. He asked British Ambassador Halifax and Andrei A. Gromyko, the Russian ambassador, to call to receive the invitations. Dr. Wei Tao-ming, the Chinese ambassador, came separately later because while China is at war with Japan, Russia is not.

Date to Be Set Later.

A date for the meeting will be set after an exchange of views with London and Moscow. Mr. Hull hopes that it will be possible to initiate the discussions within the next few weeks. Great Britain may send her foreign minister, Anthony Eden, and Russia her foreign commissar, Vyacheslaff Molotov, to the conference. The United States presumably will be represented by Mr. Hull.

The discussion will start off with the British and American negotiators thinking along somewhat parallel lines on the machinery for the preservation of peace. Mr. Hull envisages some such arrangement as this:

1. A council of the four big powers—the United States, Great Britain, Russia, and China—which would deal with major political questions during the remainder of the war and after the war would become the guardian of world peace, with the armed forces of the four powers being employed to suppress war, if necessary. The council would be the executive branch of the world peace organization.

2. An assembly of all the united nations to which the neutrals would be admitted immediately and the enemy powers eventually, such assembly to constitute a legislative body.

3. A world court to adjudicate justiciable international disputes and arbitration machinery for the settlement of political and other non-justiciable disputes.

THE QUESTION.

What to you is the most interesting or exciting phase in preparing for the production of a big stage play or musical?

WHERE ASKED.

THE ANSWERS.

Dorothy Whitney, Forest Hills, N. Y., costumer—My job is designing new costumes for the stars in a play. After I make up my mind how the costume should be made, and the tailor starts to work on it, there's no turning back. Then I start wondering if it will look right and whether the star who has to wear it will be satisfied.

Earl Covert, Los Angeles, Cal., actor—Trying to iron out all the wrinkles and knots before a play finally goes into production is always exciting. After the first dress rehearsal you realize that opening night isn't too far away and whatever has to be done must be accomplished right away without waste of time.

Shirlee Jewel, 1456 Fargo av., supporting player—In the beginning of the production before any action has taken place, the most exciting thing to me is wondering what part I'm going to have. After I know, then I like the suspense of wondering how long it will take to learn my lines. It's always a relief when that's done.

Clarence Shapiro, 931 Ainslie st., dramatic director—No matter how great a success people have made in their own private lives and irrespective of their ages, they still have the urge to act. It's interesting to sort out those who can act and give them a chance to prove it. The work involved usually proves very exciting.

Lorraine Quinn, 5746 Kenmore av., supporting player—In a large company there are so many people that it's hard to know when you first see them what their part in the play is. Then as time goes by it's interesting to see who's who. In a musical I like to listen to the songs and try to pick out the ones that may be popular.

HAIL HERO DEAD OF U. S. IN RITES AROUND WORLD

British Civilians Join Cambridge Service.

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAMBRIDGE, England, May 30.—American dead were honored this Memorial day in a simple ceremony attended not only by high ranking officers of both America and Britain, but also by throngs of English men, women, and children. Many of them brought flowers from their own gardens in tribute to Americans who have found a resting place in foreign soil.

The ceremonies here were matched by fighting men from America on fronts thruout the world, wherever the exigencies of battle permitted.

The cemetery lies on a little plateau overlooking some of England's loveliest rolling countryside near this university town. Altho most of those buried here are air force members, the cemetery also includes men from the other services and one woman, an American nurse killed in a motor crash on her wedding night.

Midwesterners at Ceremony.

The center aisle between the graves was banked with flowers brought by members of the British Women's Volunteer reserve. Honor guard units included the following midwesterners:

Pvt. John D. Hicks, Christopher, Ill.; Corp. Francis L. Schermerhorn, Lake Station, Mich.; Pvt. John A. Grehn, Ashland, Wis.; Pvt. Irving F. Huchschill, Garfield Heights, O.; Pvt. August H. Jordan, Batavia, Ill.; and Sgt. Philip Thaw and Pvt. Douglas P. Benda, of St. Louis, Mo. American chaplains participating included Capt. Judah Nadich, formerly of Anshe Emet synagogue, Chicago.

Clark Hails Anzio Dead.

ANZIO, Italy, May 30 (AP).—As guns in the battle for Rome rumbled a few miles away, Lt. Gen. Mark Clark made a brief address in Memorial day services honoring the 5th army soldiers who died to hold Anzio.

"This is not a moment of sadness, but rather of inspiration to spur us on to the task which has been set for us," he said. "We should use their aspirations and fighting spirit to drive us forward as Americans have always done in the past nine months. At Salerno, at Naples, across the Volturno, along the Garigliano, and in the Anzio beachhead. With God's help we shall carry on the task which they began."

Rites in New Guinea.

AN ALLIED BASE, New Guinea, May 30 (AP).—All ranks were represented today at memorial services in remembrance of New Guinea's soldier dead.

"The sun never sets on American graves," a chaplain said during ceremonies at a cemetery on a little green knoll where perhaps 500 fighting men lie buried.

Australians Join Ceremonies.

A NORTHERN AUSTRALIAN BASE, May 30 (AP).—Men and women in the uniforms of two nations today honored Americans who died on battlefields 7,000 miles from home.

In services at this base Australians joined with American officers, nurses, and enlisted men in paying tribute to the dead and in decorating their graves.

Some of those buried here were marines who fell at Guadalcanal or infantrymen killed at Buna and other New Guinea battlefields.

Honor Aleutian Dead.

AN ALEUTIANS BASE, May 30 (AP).—Vice Adm. Frank Fletcher, commander, North Pacific, paid tribute to men killed in fighting the Japanese in the Aleutians in Memorial day ceremonies today.

OPPOSED BY CIO, CONGRESSMAN IN ALABAMA LOSES

Birmingham, Ala., May 30 [Special].—One incumbent congressman held a small lead and another apparently went down to defeat on the basis of late returns tonight from today's runoff primary in which both were opposed by the CIO political action committee.

In the 7th district, Rep. Carter Manasco of Jasper had 9,976 votes to 9,205 for J. H. Deason in returns from 210 of 296 boxes in the district. Manasco's lead was steadily increasing as the count proceeded.

Rep. John Newsome, freshman congressman from the 9th district, apparently was defeated by former Rep. Luther Patrick. In returns from 232 of 256 boxes, Patrick had 12,461 votes to 11,875 for Newsome. Patrick in his campaign accused Newsome of "voting with the Republicans."

MRS. BRUCKNER SLATED FOR POST AS BRICKER AID

Mrs. William T. Bruckner of Hinsdale, active in women's clubs for 30 years, is expected to be chosen today as vice chairman in charge of women's activities at a meeting of the Chicago Bricker for President committee in the Stevens hotel.

A past president of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Bruckner is a grandmother and the wife of a retired banker. In 1940 she took part in a radio program with Sen. Taft of Ohio, then a candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination. Taft now is supporting Gov. Bricker.

Frank C. Rathje, lawyer and banker, is expected to be permanent chairman of the committee, which is temporarily headed by G. E. Tenney. Main speaker today will be Myers Y. Cooper, governor of Ohio in 1929 and 1930.

End of Burocratic Rule Demanded.

stantial progress in the solution of our fiscal and taxation problems.

"For six years I have been attending these conferences. At every meeting we have been considering the encroachment of the national government on state and local authority. We have had to fight our own government to keep our own rights."

Bricker said revitalization of industry and preservation of constitutional government are two essentials to keeping the nation powerful after the war.

States Threatened, He Warns.

"In considering our fiscal policies I am guided by two basic objectives," he said. "The first is the preservation of our federal system of government. The truth is that the states are threatened by an evergrowing centralization of power in Washington.

"The threat is so serious that today we face the question whether the states shall remain active, cooperative, and equally sovereign members of our governmental system or whether they shall be reduced to provincial administrative units with little or no self-government.

"Indeed, the issue reaches to the very heart of the American form of government. Shall government be kept close to the hands of the American people and ever responsive to their guiding will, or shall it be completely usurped by an already highly centralized national authority which is ever growing more powerful?

"Shall the people preserve home rule or shall they sit passively by while it is being strangled to death? This is the issue to which the people must be constantly alert.

"My second objective is that we must devise a system of taxation and adopt a scale of rates that will revitalize our entire economic machinery. To that end, we must provide the necessary incentives for investment in industry and for production by management and labor.

Assails Subsidy Theory.

The states and local governments are in relatively good financial position now, Bricker said, and the need is federal fiscal policies to preserve that position. He assailed the subsidy theory on which burocracy has waxed fat.

The trend toward subsidies was analyzed by Bricker, who declared state and local governments become a sham and a pretense if they cannot support themselves and must go to another government for handouts.

Bricker offered three recommendations on what should be done in the face of these trends. The first was for strictest economy in government.

Segregated Tax Bases Urged.

The second suggestion was segregation of tax bases, preserving appropriate fields of revenue for national, state, and local governments, instead of the present patchwork tax structure.

Bricker's third point was that when states "reach the point where their revenues may be expected to meet necessary demands for a material period of time, instead of increasing local government subsidies they should repeal such taxes as will best open fields of revenue for local governments."

TWO STORY FALL FATAL.

George Midura, 61, died yesterday in Southtown hospital of a skull fracture suffered earlier in the day when he fell two floors while washing the windows of his home at 3025 Bonfield st.

KELLY EXPECTS ACTION TODAY ON INDUSTRY

Harrisburg, Pa., May 30 (AP).—Gov. Kelly [R.] of Michigan indicated today the national conference of governors would act, before adjourning tomorrow, on the problems of reconversion of industry after the war.

"I'm confident the resolutions committee made careful note of what can be done toward carrying forward the reconversion program," said Gov. Kelly after presiding at a closed meeting on the subject.

"We are now at the mercy of congress," Kelly said. "We [the states] cannot plan for reconversion until congress acts."

DuPont Chemists Develop New Paint to Cover in One Coat

Average Room Costs Less Than $2.75 with Bargain Coupon

The slickest, quickest interior paint anyone ever dipped a brush into. Saves time and money. Once over a room usually does the job. Move the furniture back in one hour.

For the walls and ceiling of average room, one gallon of Speed-Easy is enough (only $2.75 or less with bargain coupon below). Amazing results for living rooms, dining rooms, bedrooms, halls, game rooms, garages, etc. Used by reliable painters, preferred by particular home-owners.

Starts White—Stays White! Why is Du Pont House Paint so brilliantly white? Because it's made with titanium dioxide, the pigment that's even whiter than snow! This paint stays white, too, because—

It's Self-Cleaning! Du Pont House Paint is so formulated that, as time goes by, a microscopically fine white powder forms on the surface. Heavy rains wash this powder away, taking dust and dirt with it, and leaving the surface clean and white again. (Excessive accumulations of dirt, particularly in sooty industrial communities, or in heavily shaded locations, may delay or interfere with this process.) Because this "self-cleaning" is gradual, the wearing qualities of the paint film are not abnormally affected.

Guards the Surface! Du Pont House Paint forms a beautiful, durable coating that protects against rust, rot and decay. Available in popular tints as well as white.

Yet Du Pont House Paint costs no more than other good paints. Call in a reliable painter for your painting jobs. He'll be glad to use Du Pont House Paint.

CIVILIANS TO GET 1,600,000 TIRES FOR CARS IN JUNE

Chicago Auto Quota Set at 395 for Month.

Rubber Director Bradley Dewey said yesterday in Washington, D. C., that he has instructed the office of price administration to release 1,600,000 passenger tires during June for essential civilian driving, an increase of 200,000 over the May quota.

He asserted that production schedules are being forwarded gradually to attain a goal of 22 million tires during the current year. This will include a monthly production rate of more than 2 million synthetic passenger tires during the last quarter of the year, he said.

May Not Share in Benefits.

Dewey emphasized that the nonessential A card driver probably would not share in the benefits of stepped up production. This was in contradiction of a prediction last week by Charles F. Philips, deputy administrator of OPA in charge of rationing, that tires would be made available to this class of drivers when production hit the 2 million a month mark.

All requirements of essential driving will be met by the 22 million production rate together with the release of high grade camelback for recapping, Dewey said.

Tractor Tire Quota Set.

He also said he had authorized OPA to release 125,000 heavy duty tires for essential trucking, and 20,000 rear farm tractor and heavy implement tires during June. In May 25,000 tractor tires were released.

Under new OPA quotas, Chicagoans will be permitted to purchase 395 new automobiles during June, when 616 will be released thruout the state. The national allotment for the month is 9,000, or 10 per cent under the May quota. On May 1 only 47,000 automobiles remained of the 530,000 available when rationing began.

F. D. R. Suggests a New Name: 'The Tyrants' War'

Washington, D. C., May 30 (AP).—President Roosevelt today suggested a new name for the war—the Tyrants' war. The chief executive told his press conference the name was suggested to him two or three weeks ago and he liked it very much. Last week, taking a tip from a Washington newspaper editorial, the President suggested the coming military operations in Europe be known as a war of liberation rather than invasion.

8,000 Attend 33d Ward G. O. P. Picnic in Niles

A crowd estimated at more than 8,000 attended the annual 33d ward picnic, sponsored by the 33d ward Republican organization yesterday in Silver Leaf grove, on Milwaukee av. in Niles. Families brought basket lunches, and there was a program of games for the children. John T. Dempsey, ward committeeman and Republican nominee for state's attorney, served as chairman.

RATION FRAUDS CHARGED TO 5 CHICAGO FIRMS

Suspension proceedings charging five Chicago firms used ration points that the office of price administration contends were stolen or forged were filed yesterday by Paul A. H. Shults, acting area OPA director, with John F. Manierre, regional hearing commissioner. The firms and the number of points involved:

Landers Restaurant Co., 134 S. Wabash av., 100,237 points; E. Okonlewski, 8559 Muskegon av., 25,160 points; Christ Katemis, 3066 E. 92d st., 62,000 points; Rex Cole's market, 6631 Ashland av., 100,000 points, and E. H. Behnke & Son, 3128 E. 92d st., 251,313 points. The Behnke firm sells exclusively to commissaries of lake steamers.

Shults also complained that John P. Miller of the Southtown Food Mart, Aurora, had refused to repay an excess inventory of 26,572 points. Another action sought to force Anthony Karosa of Gary, Ind., meat dealer, to pay to Armour & Co. 2,396 meat points allegedly overdue.

Bruno Bertucci of 5450 Harrison st. and Anthony Dembski of 852 N. Leavitt st. were charged with exceeding ceiling prices.

TEXAS POLITICAL SPLIT MAY GO ON PRIMARY BALLOT

Austin, Tex., May 30 (AP).—Pro-Roosevelt Democrats made plans today to carry the state party split directly to the voters in the party primary July 22. Their leaders announced they would attempt to have their slate of electors placed on the primary ballot, contending that the law requires the choosing of electors in the primary.

The custom has been for the electors chosen in the state convention to be placed directly on the general election ballot.

This year there were two conventions, split on the Roosevelt issue. One named uninstructed delegates to the national convention and a set of electors. Roosevelt supporters walked out and named their own delegates and electors.

CHICAGOANS JAM BEACHES, PARKS IN HOLIDAY MOOD

Temperatures in the 80s and holiday for thousands of workers turned yesterday's celebration of Memorial day into a gigantic outing for Chicagoans who took their choice of sunning themselves on the lake front or picnicking in the parks and forest preserves. Wherever they went they arrived early and stayed all day.

It was a fiesta of a new season. Back were the familiar summer scents of red hots, suntan oil, soft drinks, and orange peel. North av. beach swarmed with a crowd of 75,000 at midafternoon—25,000 of them venturing into the water. Police estimates for south side beaches ran to 150,000. Attendance in Lincoln park and all north side beaches ran to 500,000.

Bites Mean Little.

Fishermen crowded the Montrose av. extension as usual, but they were indifferent about their luck. Picnics were family affairs, with grandparents, parents, and children crowded around huge baskets which made centerpieces on blocks of card tables hauled from home. Parking lots near beach and picnic areas assumed pre-war appearances, but the bus traffic was heavy, too, with holiday makers clad in slacks and fairly bowed down with thermos jugs, blankets, and lunches.

Several suburban towns held Memorial day parades. In Waukegan, Silas Nichols, 96, Lake county's last Civil war veteran, and Mrs. Nichols, 88, rode at the head of the parade. In Aurora, another Civil war veteran, Daniel A. Wedge, 102, rode in an ambulance in the procession. The Chicago parade was held Sunday. Patriotic organizations decorated the graves of service men in cemeteries thruout Chicagoland.

Work Day for Services.

It was a regular work day at Fort Sheridan and Great Lakes Naval Training center, but Memorial prayers were said at both posts, and at Great Lakes an anchor of flowers was cast into Lake Michigan in memory of sailor dead.

War agency offices worked a full day, as did many war plants. It was a work day, too, for 3,000 students at Evanston Township High school, who voted to have classes yesterday and get out of school for summer vacation on a Thursday instead of a Friday. There was a Memorial day service at the school, however, with the dedication of a plaque bearing the names of 4,003 alumni in the present war and 62 gold stars. Eighty students who sold $100,000 worth of bonds and stamps to the other students had a ride in an M-4 tank which was taken to the school.

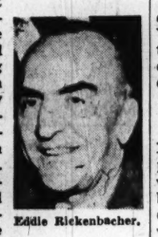
Build Peace Fortress to End Danger of Future Wars: Rick

Kansas City, Mo., May 30 [Special].—Failure to win the peace after the last war is the reason why more than 50,000 gold stars now hang in American homes and many more will be displayed before victory is won in this war, Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker asserted tonight in an address before the American War Dads.



Eddie Rickenbacher.

Rickenbacker, ace flyer and hero of two wars, devoted his talk to the present and its sacrifices, and the future and its dangers, rather than to the traditional Memorial day topics of the past and its glories. On the platform with him were two heroes of the present conflict—Lt. Ernest Childers, Broken Arrow, Okla., and Sgt. Charles E. [Commando] Kelly, Pittsburgh, Pa., wearers of the congressional medal of honor.

"I make the sad prediction," he said, "that before this war is over, virtually every person in the United States will have some relative or friend in whom the god of war will have left his crimson mark.

Battle of "Men" Imminent.

"So far this war, on our part, has mainly been a battle of machines—planes, tanks, ships—and the casualties, therefore, have been comparatively light. But, as invasion starts in many parts of the world, it becomes a battle of men, and we must be prepared for greater losses."

Observing that when the foundation of this war was laid more than a quarter of a century ago few of our service men had seen the light of day, he asked:

"What is there in this world that deprives youth of the right to live? Why should war deprive mothers of their sons? Why should wives become war widows? Why should children become orphans?

Blinded by Ideals.

"This is the reason why:

"Because at the end of World War I. we did not build a fortress of peace. We compromised with those who had nothing to lose. We were blinded by our ideals and mistook dreams for realities. We thought we saw, in the unsound peace terms, eternal proof that there would never be another World war."

Warning that the burden of the future will fall on those now carrying the burden of war, Rickenbacker said it is the duty of those on the home front to make that load less burdensome by building a fortress of peace so strong that no nation or nations would ever dare to assault it again.

Warns of "Fancy Phrases."

"The plan for this fortress of peace must be drawn now," he said. "We want to see it in black and white. We must avoid the pitfalls of personal foreign policies that undermined the peace efforts at the end of World War I. Let us wake up to the dangers of being fooled by fancy phrases and glittering generalities."

At a press conference held earlier in the day, Rickenbacker asserted that "America needs a man." We need a man, he said, who will "go to the American people with a promise of legislation for their approval limiting the Presidential term to six years—or two terms of four years each, our traditional and God-given heritage. A man who will add the fifth freedom to the Atlantic charter—the freedom of opportunity."

FOOD SHIPMENTS FOR LEND-LEASE 11 MILLION TONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 30.—Three years ago tomorrow the Egyptian Prince anchored at London with 3,983 cases of midwestern eggs and 200,256 pounds of Wisconsin cheese, inaugurating the lend-lease program under which the United States in three years has sent more than 11 million tons of food to its allies, principally Britain and Russia.

This year it is estimated that the lend-lease supplies will represent 11⅓ per cent of our food production, the department said. The United Kingdom and other British claimants will receive 4 per cent; Russia will receive 3⅓ per cent, and emergency requirements for liberated areas and other special purposes will take 4 per cent.

United States military services have been allocated 13⅓ per cent, leaving 75 per cent for United States civilians.

JOB PROMISES BREAK BREWSTER 'STAY-IN SIEGE'

Washington, D. C., May 30 [Special]—The CIO United Automobile Workers called off the "stay-in siege" of Brewster's Long Island City, N. Y., and Johnsville, Pa., plants today on the strength of hasty government promises to hunt new war contracts for these first victims of war plane overproduction. The workers started leaving the plants this evening.

The action followed a stormy preview of post-war reconversion problems as both congress and President Roosevelt took cognizance of the furore caused by the abrupt termination last week of the Brewster Aeronautical corporation's contract to produce Corsair fighter planes. Labor bitterly denounced the navy cutback as showing the "Wall st. viewpoint" of its top men.

Workers Dance and Sing.

The cutback threatened the jobs of 13,000 workers in the two Brewster plants and reached the crisis stage yesterday when more than 5,000 elected to stay in their plants rather than turn in their badges. They remained in the plants overnight, dancing and singing, while a union commissary sent them food.

President Roosevelt at his press conference called the navy's action necessary but too precipitate, and said he had assigned War Mobilization Director Byrnes to find war work for the Brewster plants.

A senate subcommittee investigating the Brewster situation heard the navy stoutly defend itself thru a blunt statement by Rear Adm. De Witt C. Ramsey, chief of the bureau of aeronautics, that "it's not the navy's function to provide for reconversion."

Many Items Overproduced.

Ramsey also asserted, in the first authoritative statement on the subject, that "we're now overproduced in many war items, and continued production at present rates is not defensible."

Richard T. Frankensteen, UAW vice president, complained to the senators that the navy was acting without regard for the human element involved in war production. He singled out Artemus L. Gates, assistant secretary in charge for air and former president of the New York Trust company, for special criticism.

"When we complained about the sudden dislodgement of men," Frankensteen testified, "Gates said he was more concerned with the outlook for the small stockholders. We have a Wall street navy. The top men have a Wall street viewpoint."

Assails Navy Viewpoint.

Frankensteen did not mention Secretary of the Navy Forrestal by name. He is a former Wall st. broker.

"The navy's understanding of the labor problem is amazing," Frankensteen charged. "They think that workers can move to new jobs as easily as soldiers are moved, as if labor families lived in pup tents."

The labor leader announced to the subcommittee his decision to call off the demonstration at the Brewster plants, explaining a statement by Byrnes would explain his action. This statement, which reached the committee a short time later, said Byrnes had asked the joint contract termination board to meet tomorrow and canvass procurement agencies for contracts which might be given Brewster in place of the Corsair order.

Asks Aid of Wilson.

Byrnes added he had asked the help of Charles E. Wilson, executive vice chairman of the war production board, in finding work for the Brewster facilities.

Ramsey told the subcommittee, which was headed by Sen. Murray [D., Mont.] that the cutback of orders for Corsairs was dictated purely by military contingencies, and said there was no criticism by the navy of either labor or management at Brewster.

Fighter losses in the Pacific have been less than had been anticipated, Ramsey said. Of three companies manufacturing Corsairs, Ramsey said, Brewster costs were highest. Termination was decided upon for Brewster, as of July 1, while the other companies, Goodyear Aircraft at Akron, O., and Chance-Vought at Bridgeport, Conn., were retained to manufacture a forthcoming advance model navy fighter.

Problem of Reconversion.

In response to the admiral's assertion that it was not the navy's function to provide for reconversion of war production plans, Sen. Murray said:

"If we don't have a program of synchronizing war contract terminations with reconversion to civilian production, the country will be thrown into chaos and confusion. We can't turn patriotic war workers into the streets."

Wilson said the contract termination committee was created last week and that it was regrettable it was not functioning at the time of the Brewster cancellation.

Urges Diligent Search.

Asked if he thought it good policy to close a large plant and disband its organization at this period in the war, Wilson replied that we will be confronted with this problem increasingly from now on.

Until the first of this year, a constant stream of labor difficulties interfered with production at the Brewster plants to such an extent that the house naval affairs committee conducted a formal investigation and naval officials threatened to terminate Brewster contracts.

Thomas De Lorenzo, president of the Brewster workers local of the UAW, came under the fire of the committee and his leadership of the local was charged by it last December with major responsibility for the company's failure to carry out its war contracts.

Admits Using Eight Names.

De Lorenzo admitted to the committee he had used 8 aliases in his career, had picked his present name out of a telephone book, had lied in reports to the company and his draft board and had failed to file income tax returns in 1938 and 1939.

Henry J. Kaiser, west coast shipbuilder, was brought in as president of Brewster in October last year. Under his management labor difficulties were ironed out, and for several months production has been reported satisfactory.

The contract for Corsair plane production was described in October as calling for 5,000 planes and involving 139 million dollars. An addinonal contract for bombers was canceled by the navy at Kaiser's request to enable the company to devote all its facilities to fighters.

HOLIDAY DEATHS IN NATION REACH 319 FOR 4 DAYS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The toll of violent deaths in the nation during the four-day Memorial day holiday soared to 319 last night.

The total was 51 greater than during the three-day holiday in 1943 and included 97 traffic fatalities, 95 drownings, and 127 deaths from miscellaneous violent causes. In 1943 there were 104 deaths in traffic, 59 drownings, and 76 from miscellaneous causes. This year's toll was, however, much less than an average peacetime Memorial day toll of 400 deaths.

Airplane crashes included one in Tennessee in which 10 were killed, and California crashes in which 25 died. Four persons were killed by lightning in Florida and three in a Tennessee family.

California reported the greatest number of deaths, 38. New York had 24, Illinois 20, and Massachusetts and Indiana 18 each.

People are talking about the AIR ACTION articles in the new Post

World's Most Decorated Sky Fighters

THIS is a close-up from a Yankee air base in England of the American youngsters who are blasting the Luftwaffe out of the skies—aces who have cancelled out nearly 400 Germans with a combat loss of only 35 of their own.

This is the human, heart-stirring story of their heroic action in combat—of unbelievable escape from death in the skies—of the peaceful English farm they come home to—and of the lonely little black dog, Slipstream, who still waits for Butch O'Connor to come back.

They told their story to a Post correspondent and posed for a Post photographer. And the result, in this week's Post, is a story with pictures you wouldn't like to miss—a story that will lift you to your feet, and deepen your respect for the most decorated sky-fighters in history.

In this Week's Issue by Cecil Carnes
AIRPORT OF ACES

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

THEY LIVED WITH AMERICA'S ACES

CECIL CARNES, Post correspondent, and R. F. Garland, Post photography editor, went to England on special assignment to bring back for Post millions this story of America's Air Aces:

They lived the lives these fighting airmen live, sweated out the return of men they learned to love, talked with them of things at home, slept in the beds of men who didn't come back.

They have seen and written and photographed the scenes and drama and emotions of young men who rough-house with pet mongrel dogs, dance with pretty English girls, sing themselves hoarse in the mess halls, and blast enemy planes out of the skies.

This high-spot story of the world's most decorated sky fighters ranks with other Air-Action articles that have brought cheers and praise from Post readers—the well-remembered "I saw Regensberg Destroyed," Post November 6th, 1943, "15 Minutes Over Paris," Post November 20th, 1943, "Butch O'Hare's Last Flight," Post March 11th, 1944.

"Airport of Aces" proves again a fact millions know—that in Air-Action, as in Fiction, Humor, Business, Politics, Mystery, War, the good things naturally come first to the new Post.

GOV. BRICKER'S VIEWS.

The views expressed by Gov. Bricker of Ohio when he was interviewed at the conference of governors at Hershey, Pa., were those of a man with courage and a conscience.

Like almost every one else in this country, the governor hopes that the peace which will follow this war will be an enduring one. Gov. Bricker realizes that the yearning for peace, like the yearning of the sick for health, is an invitation to quackery. The very intensity of the desire makes for gullibility. As a candidate for the Presidential nomination the easy course for him to pursue would be to peddle one or a half dozen of the internationalist nostrums that are on the market. Thus he might demonstrate that nobody is more in favor of peace than he.

The governor's refusal to play this game has infuriated the manufacturers of these patent pain killers, but it has strengthened his hold on the great majority of the American people. They know that it will not promote peace in this country or anywhere else to place our man power and wealth at the disposal of other nations. If we commit ourselves to any plan under which America must go to war at the demand of a super-government we shall only invite the nations of the old world to make wars for which we shall pay and from which they will profit.

America, as Gov. Bricker has reminded us again, will emerge from the present war by far the strongest nation in the world. We shall have much the biggest navy, much the biggest air force, much the biggest merchant marine, much the biggest gold reserve, a huge army, and by far the most impressive industrial and agricultural apparatus to supply our soldiers, sailors, and airmen. We don't have to fear anybody or any combination of powers. We do have to fear that other nations will seek to use our great power in war for their own advantage thru war.

Gov. Bricker thinks that the United States can and on occasion should coöperate with other nations for the preservation of peace, but he wisely opposes making any firm commitments in favor of war, sight unseen. He believes that the sovereignty of this country must be preserved inviolate and that both the spirit and the letter of the constitutional provision giving to congress the sole right to declare war must be observed.

Gov. Bricker has infuriated the internationalists, but, as they are all going to vote for Mr. Roosevelt anyway, he hasn't any cause to regret making these enemies. On the other hand, he has won a host of friends by his common sense approach to the peace problem and by his frankness in speaking his mind.

THE FOURTH TERM VOTE FRAUD.

South Carolina will not name its Presidential electors until after the Democratic national convention. The Texas Democrats held two conventions. The fourth termers were defeated in one and bolted. There may be two electoral tickets in Texas and a contest in the courts for recognition. In Texas the names of Presidential and Vice Presidential nominees do not appear on the ballot.

When Mr. Roosevelt undertook to force congress to approve the federal ballot for soldier voters he was proposing to establish illegal voting methods and to nullify the Constitution. The army and the navy would not vote for Presidential electors in the manner provided by the state legislatures, but would indicate party or candidate preferences. Also it was originally intended that a federal commission should conduct the election. The thing was rank with fraud and illegality, but Mr. Roosevelt tried to throw odium on the opposition and make it appear that without his intervention the soldiers and sailors would be disfranchised.

Slow headway was made in correcting the false impression created by this audacity and in showing that the illegality of the vote cast with the federal ballot might result in a repetition of the Hayes-Tilden contest when the electoral processes almost broke down. Only sober thoughts and extraordinary compromise saved that situation. For the fourth term campaign it was proposed to risk the situation again by introducing illegally cast ballots into the election returns.

The Democratic party troubles in the south already underline the danger the fourth term vote fraud was inviting. It is apparent now that if congress had yielded to Mr. Roosevelt and completely nullified the constitutional provision for the election of a President, Texas and South Carolina in all likelihood would have had contests with an illegally cast vote involved. As it is, a doubtful situation may arise after the November election, but the effect of an illegal vote will be minimized because congress was not stampeded by the fourth term candidate into accepting his proposals.

THE WAY OF THE ARMY.

A young army surgeon was wounded in the hand in Europe and invalided home for rehabilitation. The young doctor knew that he stood to lose the use of his fingers and his chosen career unless he had the most skilful treatment. He was not sure that the treatment proposed by the army doctors in the base hospital near his home was the best that could be devised and asked that he be allowed to consult a certain surgeon renowned for repairs of the hand. The young man was told by the army that outsiders' assistance is forbidden and permission for consultation with the specialist was refused.

The young doctor did consult the civilian surgeon anyhow and this doctor set most of his fears at rest. He is forced, however, to keep quiet about the visit. He knows that the army would be extremely critical of his action, because of professional jealousy, because it will not tolerate infractions of its rules, or both.

The army, thru the procurement and assignment boards, has put into uniform most of the physically fit doctors in the country, but there is nothing to indicate that it has cornered all of the medical brains in America. There is much evidence also that the army is not making the best of use of all the skills it has recruited. Medical men back home are kept in touch with army medicine thru letters from their professional friends in service and some of their stories are appalling. A crack surgeon is sitting out the war in a training camp doing clerical work; a general practitioner with only the most limited experience in surgery is at the front doing battle surgery.

In spite of all this, our soldiers and sailors probably are receiving the best medical care that any fighting men ever received in any war, but if civilian practitioners can help to make that care any better they ought to be allowed to do it. Stupid regulations and professional jealousy on the part of the army medical corps should not stand in the way.

THE MONEY MEETING.

President Roosevelt has called an international financial and monetary conference to meet on July 1, in the center of the fashionable summer resort section of New Hampshire. The purpose of the meeting is to formulate plans for an international monetary fund and possibly a bank for "reconstruction and development."

The international monetary fund would be a pot which would, for example, buy Chinese money and keep it at par when a lot of it was being pressed for sale either because China wasn't exporting enough goods to pay for imports or because its government's financial practices were regarded with apprehension. The reconstruction and development bank would be an institution where countries with reputations for being deadbeats could borrow freely for public improvements and other purposes.

The time may come when such a conference will be timely and useful, but that period has not yet arrived. The capital backing for any international arrangement to stabilize and keep stable the moneys of the world must be gold. As the United States has 75 per cent of the world's gold stock, an international monetary fund must be one in which we have put up the bulk of stuff that would make it work.

The only agency which could authorize the use of our gold to make acceptable without question the money of Ethiopia, Costa Rica, Liberia, Iraq, and 37 other countries included in the conference is congress. Congress has not approved of an international monetary fund, nor has it agreed to the holding of any meeting for discussing a plan for one.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and an associate by the name of White did bring forward a plan for an international monetary scheme on April 8, 1943. This was a day or so after the British government had released a plan in all essential respects similar. It was clear that both had sprung from the brain of the British economist, John Maynard Keynes, the world's best known exponent of inflation.

The Morgenthau-White-Keynes arrangement was denounced by leading members of congress who knew enough about the subject to understand it and it failed of indorsement by a single financial authority of consequence. A modified version of the plan was made public in July, without attracting adherents in congress or out. It was a dead duck if this is a republic and congress and public opinion have any influence upon the conduct of government.

However, on April 21, 1944, Mr. Morgenthau released a new version of the monetary scheme. This time it was said that it had been agreed to by the technical experts of 41 countries. The names of the American experts were not given. Their anonymity has since been preserved in the face of some devastating attacks upon the plan by men of exceptional qualifications.

The support of the top flight authorities, even if given, would not have been enough. The arrangement is for putting American gold back of the currencies of the world when our government has no control over the financial and economic policies and practices of other nations. Members of congress, perceiving what was involved, have denounced the proposal. No measure has been introduced to give the secretary of the treasury the authority to commit the government to the draft agreed upon by the so-called "technical experts," nor to any modification of the scheme the conference in July may agree upon.

The reason why no useful purpose is likely to be served by the Bretton Woods conference is that the policy determining agency of our government, congress, has not given its approval to international monetary stabilization with American gold. Morgenthau's views are therefore not official. Let delegates who do not care to come over just for the ride realize that there can be no deal. The President has no reservoir of powers covering what is being attempted.

THE SMOKY ISLANDS.

The frequency of bombing attacks on the Kurile Islands suggests that an inquiring glance toward that portion of the Japanese domain may be in order. The news means that we have begun to sock the Sons of Heaven on their home grounds even if these dismal rocks are not a cherry blossom land.

* * *

Russian seal and otter hunters gave this chain the name that it has borne for several centuries. Kurile means Smoky; the designation refers to volcanic activity. But to the Japanese they are Chishima Retto—the Thousand Islands archipelago; and the National Geographic Society, which has become meticulous in such matters, maps them as such, with "Kuril" [more hair-splitting] in parentheses.

* * *

High volcanic cones rising out of a sluggish sea matted with floating weeds; smoke and fog; lava flows and downfalls of ashes from active craters—there you have the Kuriles on a thumbnail. Seabirds nest upon the islands in great colonies, and their cries come thru the dim, gray reek like an uncanny, gabbling of lost souls. On one of the islands, at the base of a mountain, there is a great pool of boiling sulphur, and also a lake of boiling water with black sands. On others, there are dense pine forests, containing bears. The inhabitants, other than military, are a scrubby batch of Japanese fishermen who have crowded out the hairy Ainu aborigines.

* * *

The Japanese name, "Thousand Islands," is a case of poetic license. There are only 38 Kuriles, so tightly strung together that there is no passage thru the chain more than 38 miles wide.

THE LOST BIRD.

Eagle, and falcon, and vulture,
From the four winds shriek and strike.
The tiniest mouse
In his hidden house
Is prey to the prowling shrike.

Dread slayers of sky and garden,
Less birds than fiendish fowl,
Be off on your quest
To the blood-red west—
Join cause with the unseen owl!

We would lure, if we can, God's bringer
Of peace from the lands of love;
And restore again
To the modes of men
The accents of the dove.

A whimsied impulse as we strolled last night,
Our pictures taken by a garish light—
Why should that moment seem to mean so much?
Was it but that, to scoffing eyes revealed,
Blank prints took form, to suddenly confess
The likeness of our selves, and endless sealed
My foolish grin beside your loveliness?
"Unfading, everlasting, guaranteed
Untouched by change; this much immortal, freed
From time and tarnish as the world grows old;
And yet, my dear, you need not count it strange
If in my heart your beauty shall not change.

TICK, OR ROCKY MOUNTAIN FEVER.

AMERICA can boast of many scientific discoveries, including the airplane, telegraph, telephone, cotton gin, and ice machine. Our feelings are ruffled a bit, however, when historians attempt to saddle the incubus of syphilis upon our land. But it is only fair to state that the sailors of Columbus' fleet probably returned to Europe with a similar, if not identical disease. Rocky mountain spotted fever, nevertheless, is essentially our own. Western Indian tribes knew something about it and, during certain seasons of the year, avoided as accursed those regions blessed with the insect carriers. The records of early explorers reveal little accurate information until we come to the overland caravans which took the '49ers to the gold fields of California. Some of their scribes mentioned a condition which must have been tick fever.

The ailment is alluded to by Mormon emigrants traveling to Utah. The Bitter Root valley of Montana was a plague-stricken spot because so many cases of illness occurred there every spring. Fresh water from melting snow received much of the blame.

The first clear cut description of the disorder was published by E. E. Maxcy of Idaho in 1899. But the cause was a mystery until Howard Ricketts and his colleagues identified the organism which now bears his name [Rickettsia].

The chief transmitter is the wood tick [Dermacentor andersoni], altho other vermin may convey the infection. The tick makes its appearance in woodsy places in March and persists until late in June. Other varieties may be observed in the east as early as April and remain active until frost. Since few states are exempt, individuals who stroll through the brush and timber or who camp or picnic in the open are targets.

Ordinarily the pests prefer to feed upon animals. But they develop rapidly in warm, dry weather and will attach themselves to any living thing that comes along. They burrow lightly beneath the skin of their host. Even handling these invaders may be responsible for contamination.

Within 4 to 8 days after a bite, the patient will complain of fatigue, headache, loss of appetite, and shivery sensations. Symptoms may remain relatively mild for two or three days, whereupon a sharp chill, fever, and muscular pains announce the onset of an attack.

Then comes the eruption which first appears on the wrists and ankles. This constitutes our most reliable diagnostic sign. Spread then takes place to the chest and abdomen, until the entire body is covered. In the meantime, the temperature remains high. From the outset, marked prostration is exhibited. Light is shunned, the tongue is swollen, and a dry hacking cough points to bronchial irritation.

The vitality of the patient will require support. This includes skilled nursing, adequate fluids and nourishment, and scrupulous cleanliness of the sickroom. Excellent results have followed the use of arsenic-containing remedies. These drugs must be watched, however, as kidney damage—if present—may be increased. If more than a slight trace of albumin shows in the urine, we should think twice before employing such powerful preparations.

But it is better not to be obliged to combat this infection in virulent form. If one must enter an area where ticks abound it is wise to be vaccinated. This procedure will reduce the severity of the siege. [Your physician can obtain the vaccine by writing to the Rocky Mountain Laboratory of the United States public health service, Hamilton, Mont.] Antitoxins have met with some success, but we cannot rely wholly upon a neutralizing serum.

Prevention is better than cure and here clothing is an important factor. Furthermore, the body should be inspected carefully after a hike. If a tick is recognized it may be dislodged and the wound cauterized with fuming nitric or pure carbolic acid.

PROBABLY NOT.

D. P. writes: Can a mild neuritis in numerous parts of the body be considered beriberi?

REPLY.

Not unless accompanied by spasmodic rigidity of the muscles, atrophy, paralysis, etc. If your discomfort yields to thiamin [vitamin B1], your trouble may be regarded as an early deficiency manifestation.

SKULL ACCIDENTS.

J. A. writes: Referring to your recent article on head injuries, what happens if the covering of the brain is broken?

REPLY.

If there is a communication to the outside, infection may reach the brain. Furthermore, adhesions will be likely to form.

POSSIBLE.

D. W. writes: Could gastritis cause the nose to bleed?

REPLY.

Yes, if atrophy of the glands of the gastric mucosa leads to a severe type of anemia.

NOT EFFECTIVE.

M. A. writes: Do intravenous injections of arsenic help arrest tuberculosis?

REPLY.

Chocolate Fantasy.

Hershey, Pa., May 30.—Let us face the facts boldly. There are more generals, more governors, more potential Presidential candidates, and more milk chocolate in this little town at present than in any other town, big or little, in the United States. The conglomerate is so staggering you expect any minute to hear the strains of "The Chocolate Soldier" pipe out, for over it all hangs, at all hours, the stickily sweet fragrance of cooking chocolate.

The milk chocolate is always here, for this is the town that chocolate built, a lovely little model town tucked away in the green hills of Pennsylvania with five golf courses, 5,000 species of rose bushes, a model this, a model that, a chocolate avenue and a cocoa street, and, for four days, 38 governors and two has-beens.

The governors, each of whom rides up resplendently in a long, black car sporting the banner of his state, are supported by about twice their number in military aides, whose ranks seem to start at that of colonel and climb rapidly to the three star variety general.

All far outdo in splendor the four star general, a man named Marshall, who appeared on the scene. He is only chief of staff of the United States army, so he naturally had no flag on his car.

All these fine people are ensconced in the Hotel Hershey, a palatial hostelry overlooking two of the five golf courses and all of the 5,000 roses and the chocolate works as well. They spend much time in meetings of the annual governors' conference, the apparent reason for their visit. The rest of the time they spend wheeling suddenly around when some one calls out "O, governor!" The cry invariably is for another governor.

Some governors have become so attached to this annual rally that they insist on attending even when the voters have detached them from public office. Two of these die-hards were on the hotel's long veranda, serving as official greeters for all who wandered up. They were getting along nicely, talking principally to each other and about to get some place when up strode an impudent twerp who thumped both on the back with a nasty: "What's this, a rump convention of ex-governors?"

Prominently displayed in the lobby is a table loaded with gifts which the commonwealth of Pennsylvania is bestowing on each governor. Few of the governors have caught up with this yet, but all the outsiders have. They, this correspondent among them, wander by wistfully to gaze at such Pennsylvania products as a fleecy white, woolen [100 per cent] blanket, a gallon of maple sirup, book-ends made of Pennsylvania anthracite, and trays made of Pennsylvania pewter.

There are some here who say that the next President of the United States is somewhere in the vast hotel lobby at this writing, but a disreputable Democratic national committeeman, who somehow managed to slip in, says that's an idle rumor. He says there is no one here more substantial than the next Republican nominee. But certainly three potential candidates are here, altho only one, Gov. Bricker of Ohio, admits it. He is the only frank man in a group that seems to think silence means something. Gov. Warren of California says he is out of it. And Gov. Dewey, believe it or not, says as far as he knows he has never been in it. He is being Olympian and mysterious and it is about to get on everybody's nerves. In such moments of stress yesterday afternoon they ate milk chocolate which melts in the present hot weather. Last night at the state dinner, however, the orchestra foxed them all.

As the governors, their ladies, their multitudinous aides, and their watchdogs, the press, filed in to dinner the orchestra burst out with the strains, "Hail to the Chief." By a long standing custom it is played only for the Presidents. But then, of course, three potentials probably never before have sat down to a friendly dinner.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

"SHAME!"

Cedar Rapids, Ia., May 27.—Shame on you strikers at Parke Davis & Co., manufacturers of blood plasma and penicillin that helps to save the lives of our young men who are doing the fighting for you at $50 a month and working hours unlimited. Shame on you strikers in any manufacturing plant producing war materials for the young men who are fighting for you and working at $50 per month, hours unlimited.

Shame on you strikers in any plant producing foodstuff or anything needed to win the war and help save the lives of the young men who are dying. Shame on the labor leaders who call these strikes and shame on the President and his cohorts for permitting them. When our boys come home, they surely will remember them.

RALPH R. ELLIS.

MR. BIDDLE'S LOGIC.

Nashville, Tenn., May 26.—There was one important difference between Sewell Avery's defiance of the war labor board and the defiance by John L. Lewis. Mr. Lewis did not resist the seizure of the mines, says Mr. Biddle. Ain't that a sledge hammer blow of logic?

Mr. Lewis did not resist the seizure of the mines! And, come to think of it, did Mr. Avery resist the seizure of the union! Is it possible that Mr. Biddle is as naive as his prattle suggests?

And then Mr. Biddle says in this Montgomery Ward controversy there was no time for timidity, because, says the bold attorney general, a failure to throw Mr. Avery out of his office might have resulted in widespread strikes. Did Mr. Biddle throw Mr. Avery out of his office because it was right, and fair, or did he order it done because he was afraid of union labor? If he was afraid of union labor why does he yelp about the necessity of being bold. If he was intent on being fair why does he cry about the possibilities of exacerbating the increasing moodiness of labor?

In short, has Mr. Biddle any policy except cheap subterfuge and shallow politics? This is election year.

ARMY PAY.

Chicago, May 27.—Newspapers have published reports that the high rate of pay our army receives has caused an unfortunate situation between American and English troops in England. It seems that our boys are able to buy some of the things they have been accustomed to as citizens of the United States while the men in the service of England have to be content with a much lower standard of living. No doubt our men in Europe now have greater respect for American institutions, free press, free enterprise and republicanism which is responsible for our high standard of living. This should be a warning to the followers of communism and "One World."

JAMES H. FEELEY.

OVER THE TOP.

Chicago, May 24.—The advertising and publishers' division of the American Red Cross war fund drive topped its quota by $20,000 this year, and I am happy to tell you that this was due entirely to the very generous contribution of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

LLOYD MAXWELL.

ANOTHER EINSTEIN THEORY.

Chicago, May 27.—Prof. Albert Einstein has taken on a new theory. Speaking before a political group in Washington, D. C., last week, he advocated a fourth term for the President, his strongest point being that, to change leadership during war time would be a folly. Before escaping the Nazi wolves and coming to this country he was a world famed pacifist, but he soon shed the cloak of pacifism and was an ardent advocate for war long before war was declared.

The professor always has been very difficult to understand, his dimensional theories have been perplexing even to the most intelligent minds, and only a handful of people in the whole world understand his fourth dimension. I am sure his fourth term theory is just as foggy to the majority of the American people.

BEN SORG.

HE LAUGHS AND LAUGHS.

Chicago, May 27.—News items "Laughing heartily, the President said the question ['Have you reached a decision?'] was a good one. . . . A questioner remarked. . . . Again the President only laughed."

Some one has said: 'A people gets as good a government as it deserves." America deserves President Roosevelt. It has taken his insults for 12 years. Suppose a cook or secretary "laughed heartily" when his employer asked about his plans—plans which vitally concerned the employer and which he had a right to know? The President is an employe of the United States. Yet F. D. R. just laughs, and laughs!

SELMA WALDEN LINCOLN.

GOLD STAR PINS.

Green Bay, Wis., May 27.—In today's issue I read the letter by "A Heartbroken Mother" who wishes to obtain a gold star pin.

I am also a Gold Star Mother and had a very similar experience. One clerk in a jewelry store even insulted me by saying, "You don't want a gold star pin. Do you know what a gold star pin is for?"

For this mother's information, she can obtain a gold star pin by joining the Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion, to which she is eligible thru the loss of her son in the service.

MRS. H. D. CHOATE.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

RENT RECEIPTS.

Chicago, May 8.—My landlord never has given me receipts for the rent I have paid. [1] In the event of a lawsuit, is there any protection for the tenant who has no receipts? [2] Would a home budget, or a daily expense account be considered sufficient proof?

F. W.

1. In absence of a receipt, if the landlord brought suit and the tenant denied the liability, the result would depend on whose oral testimony was believed in court.
2. We would advise you not to rely upon your own records.

STRIKE OF 40,000 IN MILLS PERILS PULP INDUSTRY

Army Says That Idleness 'Bites Into' Program.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

An army official said yesterday production losses due to walk-outs involving nearly 40,000 Pacific northwest lumber workers threatened the entire pulp industry at a time when lumber, pulp, and paper are the war's current most critical materials.

The sawmill dispute was the largest in the nation's labor picture.

At Washington the bureau of labor statistics reported 435 strikes in April, highest for that month in five years, and said idle man days in the first four months of this year increased 48 per cent over the total for the same period of 1943.

Logs Are Bottleneck.

Discussing the northwest's sawmill walk-outs, Col. Martin McDonnell, army headquarters staff forest products chief, said at Seattle, Wash.: "Our present bottleneck is logs. If we don't get our needs here in the Pacific northwest, it bites right into our artillery program." The walk-outs have shut down more than 100 lumber operations with an estimated daily production of 14,000,000 board feet of lumber and 10,000,000 board feet of logs.

The northwestern council of the AFL lumber and sawmill workers has called on its estimated 26,000 members idle to return to work at once, in anticipation of national WLB action on wage increase demands, but the CIO's international woodworkers of America rejected such action.

Call Drug Strike Leaders.

National and regional war labor boards summoned leaders of 1,900 Detroit, Mich., drug workers who walked out at Parke, Davis and Co. and bakery truck drivers to "show cause" at hearings today in Washington and Detroit why work should not be resumed.

The Parke, Davis company has said the CIO drug union dispute has curtailed production of medical supplies including penicillin and blood plasma for army and civilian use.

At Muncie, Ind., four plants of the Warner Gear division of the Borg-Warner corporation—devoted entirely to war production—were closed by an unauthorized strike which began last night when workers refused to report on the 11:30 shift. The company said 3,693 employes were made idle.

Wire Mill Is Closed.

At Worcester, Mass., the huge wire mill of the American Steel and Wire company, employing 5,000 on war work was closed after a protest by the CIO United Steel Workers over the alleged suspension of 21 men in the loading department.

At Grand Rapids, Mich., 250 AFL employes shut down the converting plant of the American Box Board company engaged in manufacture of containers for war material.

RECORD OUTPUT OF MILK BOOSTS USERS' QUOTAS

Record milk production in the Chicago milkshed area has caused the war food administration to boost June quotas for consumers in Madison, Racine, Kenosha, and Milwaukee, Wis., and in Peoria and Rockford.

The quota on fluid milk has been set at 104 per cent of the June, 1943, consumption and the cream and milk by product quota has been set at 110 per cent for these areas, H. H. Erdman, administration official, announced yesterday.

Chicago consumers will be able to buy 105 per cent as much milk as heretofore, but only the same quantities of by-products.

NINE END STRIKE WHICH COST 600 TONS OF STEEL

A strike of nine crane hookers at the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation's south works in South Chicago was halted yesterday when the workers agreed to return to their jobs on the shift starting at 3 p. m. and submit their wage demands to an arbitration committee of union and plant officials.

The strike, which started Monday, caused a production loss of 600 tons of heavy rolled plate steel used in the construction of landing craft and aircraft carriers and made 468 other workers idle.

BURGLAR KILLED BY DETECTIVE IN BATTLE IN FLAT

Shot Four Times After He Wields Knife.

William B. Pierog, 54, of 2036 W. 19th st., a burglar with a long police record, was shot and killed yesterday in a battle with Detective James E. Fitzgerald of the Fillmore st. station.

J. E. Fitzgerald [top] and W. B. Pierog.

Fitzgerald received a stab wound in the stomach in a three minute struggle with Pierog in the kitchen of the apartment of J. Jeffrey Grant, which adjoins Fitzgerald's own apartment in the building at 3635 Cermak rd.

Pierog had entered the apartment by cutting a screen on the back door. A neighbor who saw him notified Fitzgerald, who followed Pierog into the Grant apartment. Mrs. Grant, hearing a noise in her kitchen, had run out the front door of the apartment. Fitzgerald grappled with Pierog, who weighed 220 pounds and was armed with a butcher knife. After receiving the knife wound, the detective fired four times, all the bullets striking Pierog.

Pierog's police record began with a prison sentence in 1903 on a robbery charge. He was convicted of burglary in Ohio in 1909. In 1927 he was sent to prison in Joliet on a robbery charge.

He was paroled in 1933. Last year he was picked up in Cicero for questioning, but was released.

Fitzgerald, who is 49, has been a policeman for 24 years.

Grant, in whose apartment the shooting occurred, is a commercial artist with studios at 333 N. Michigan av. He was not at home at the time.

Triplets, all boys, were born to Mrs. Frank Rounds, 2655 Wilcox st., early yesterday in St. Elizabeth's hospital. They weighed 4 pounds 8 ounces; 4 pounds 11 ounces, and 3 pounds 15 ounces. The infants are "doing nicely" in an incubator, the hospital said.

RICH WINNETKAN'S SUICIDE PROSTRATES HIS ESTRANGED WIFE

Mrs. Artemus De Long Watson Jr., 33, slim, attractive widow of the wealthy Winnetka greeting card manufacturer who shot himself 12 hours after she filed suit for a divorce Monday, was reported in a state of collapse yesterday in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas Fitzgerald, 3750 Lake Shore dr.

She had been unaware of her husband's suicide until late in the morning, when her father, wealthy New York and Chicago advertising executive, broke the news to her after reading it in the newspapers, her lawyer, Louis L. Cohen, said. The family had not answered telephone calls or door bells Monday, he added, to avoid curiosity calls expected as an aftermath of the divorce proceedings.

The Carrington Greeting Card company was owned by Watson and his wife. The suicide recalled the fate of Charles S. Ross, former head of the company, who was kidnaped in 1937, and murdered after his wife had paid fifty thousand dollars ransom. The slayer was electrocuted.

Services for Mr. Watson will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at Linden av. and Tower rd., Winnetka.

METALLURGIST SHOOTS SELF AT EX-WIFE'S HOME

William D. Brooks, 26, of 1712 Livingston st., Evanston, a metallurgist, was found shot in the temple last night in the areaway of an apartment building at 916 Reba pl., Evanston, where his divorced wife, Gertrude, resides.

Mrs. Brooks, who obtained a divorce two weeks ago, told Detectives H. E. Ruland and A. E. Feeley that Brooks apparently shot himself because she refused a reconciliation. He had threatened her, she said.

Hearing two shots, Mrs. Brooks called police, who found Brooks lying in the areaway, a .38 caliber revolver beside him. He was taken to St. Francis hospital, where physicians said his condition was serious.

Employe of Hospital Dies in Dive on Rock in Lake

Vincent Wells, 37, of 732 E. Marquette rd., a technician's assistant at Billings Memorial hospital laboratories, died in Lake Michigan at 52d st. yesterday when his head struck a rock as he dived into the lake. Maj. J. V. Carter of Gardiner General hospital said Wells probably died of a skull fracture.

BIDDLE ASKED IF OTHERS CAN APE CIO IN POLITICS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 30.—Atty. Gen. Biddle was asked today for an official opinion whether small business and farm groups will be immune from federal prosecution if they follow the example of the CIO political action committee and finance political activities with corporate funds in defiance of the corrupt practices act.

Harrison Spangler.

Chairman Harrison E. Spangler of the Republican national committee requested Biddle for the ruling in a letter describing the operations of the CIO committee as "a flagrant and bold violation" of the law. If the Sidney Hillman group is to be permited to get away with it, however, he remarked, those fighting a fourth term for President Roosevelt should be extended the same protection.

Plan to Have Millions.

"Your reasons for permitting such a clear violation of the law, which you are under oath to enforce, have not been made plain," Spangler wrote. "It is suggested however that you may have taken your position upon the theory that our laws and the Constitution of our country are not binding upon you in war time as you recently ruled when you removed, without due legal process and with the help of soldiers, an unarmed storekeeper from his place of business in Chicago."

Spangler noted that the CIO committee has publicly admitted to receiving contributions totaling more than $750,000 from the CIO and that they expect to increase such contributions to several million dollars.

"The FBI has reported that the Hillman committee received lump sums of $100,000 from several labor organizations, or 20 times the $5,000 maximum permitted by law," he continued. "The political action committee so financed asserts that it is exempt and immune from prosecution under the law and they apparently base their claim on an opinion which you have rendered.

Are They Immune, Too?

"In view of your ruling, I desire an opinion from you as to other groups who wish to become active in this campaign against the re-election of Mr. Roosevelt for a fourth term.

"Representatives of a number of farm coöperative associations [corporations] would like to know whether or not, if they form a political action committee financed by their corporate funds for the defeat of Mr. Roosevelt, you would grant them the same immunity from prosecution as you have the CIO committee financed with money taken from the assessments on members of labor organizations.

"A group of loyal Americans who are an important part of our national life and who represent what is known as 'little business' and composed of many thousands of small corporations would like to know where they stand with you."

INSTALMENT XXVII.

IN LOVE.

"There's one connection that you don't seem to have thought of," said Cockrill. "Higgins talked of 'goings-on' in the sisters' booth that night that he was brought in . . . there was one other person who could have witnessed those 'goings-on,' and that was your friend, Frederica."

"But — but Freddi herself was mostly connected with the 'goings-on'; I mean, she and Barney were talking in there. So if Freddi's killed — I mean if any one tries to kill Freddi . . . ."

"I believe Major Eden and Sister Bates were also talking in there."

"O, that was all nothing," said Woods, brushing it aside. "Gervase had a slight affair with Bates, everybody knows that; and he was tired of it and she was full of lamentations and reproaches . . ."

"And threats?" said Cockie.

She caught her breath; but went on, earnestly, almost at once: "She may have threatened to make a fuss; she was jealous and miserable and perhaps a bit hysterical—but what could she have done? There was nothing to be wrecked by a scene with Marion Bates."

"Except his practice," suggested Cockrill. "I understand that Major Eden had a great many women in his practice?"

"He's a general surgeon," said Woods, stoutly.

"Largely patronized by women," insisted Cockie; "and tho I don't suggest for a moment that Major Eden consciously exercises his charm over these ladies, well, I daresay they wouldn't flock to him if he were old and ugly and disagreeable."

"He is old and ugly and disagreeable," said Woods. "At least rather old, and rather ugly. . . ."

"And not at all disagreeable," said Cockie, smiling.

"No, he isn't," admitted Woods, smiling too.

"And so I say that, supposing there had been a sordid breach of promise case, or something of that kind—it would have done Major Eden's private practice no good; no good at all."

She jerked her head impatiently, "Inspector, are you seriously suggesting . . .? It's nonsense. People don't murder people for things like that!"

"People have been known to murder people for a great deal less," said Cockie, grimly ironical.

"But I . . . But he couldn't . . ." She said, with belated caution: "I don't know why I should take it upon myself to defend Major Eden like this: but the point is, you're all wrong. He just couldn't have done it. He isn't that kind of person."

"Well, that's a most rational defense, I must say," said Cockie, mockingly. "He isn't that kind of person!' Isn't that just like a woman! Now, look here, Miss Woods . . . I don't say for a moment that Eden did kill Bates and Higgins; but he's one of six equally unlikely people and he had some sort of motive. He's accounted to me for the first time after he saw Higgins in the ward; but he has no alibis for the time between his seeing the man carried thru the hall, and the time that he visited the ward."

"O, good heavens," cried Woods, impatiently; "what rubbish all this is! 'Saw the man carried thru the hall!' We saw a bundle of rags carried thru the hall, all huddled up on a stretcher. Are you suggesting that, on the strength of that, Gervase rushed off and concocted a deep laid plot to murder Higgins, thought out how to do it, and started the whole thing going? It's nonsense; of course it is. Of course it wasn't Gervase."

"Then who was it?" asked Cockrill. "Who was it? Which of your six friends?"

"I don't know," said Woody helplessly.

"It wasn't you, for example?" said Cockrill with a twinkle. "You would be hardly likely to make these elaborate arrangements for gassing Frederica Linley, and then come and put the shilling in the meter yourself! Similarly, it couldn't be Miss Linley, could it? for she was one of the victims; or Miss Sanson, because she saved Miss Linley; and it wouldn't be Captain Barnes, because whatever else he may be, he is sincerely in love with her. You insist that it isn't Major Eden; so that only leaves Major Moon."

"And it couldn't be Major Moon?" said Woods. "You don't think it could be him?"

"Ah, that would be telling," said Cockie, and suddenly stumped out of the room and down the stairs.

Woody followed him; she said, urgently, her hand gripping the thin wooden banister; "Does that mean that you know? You know who did it?"

"Of course," said Cockrill.

She stood transfixed, staring at him. "You know, Inspector? But how on earth? I mean, how could you . . .? What can you . . . ? When did you find out?"

"O, about ten minutes ago," said Cockie, gaily.

The fractured tib. and fib. lay in the corner bed. He complained rather plaintively that his leg was hurting a lot; and added incautiously that this time it really was.

"What do you mean?" said Esther, innocently. "Doesn't it always?"

"O, yes, of course, always; abominably," said William. "Tho oddly enough, only when you're on duty!"

Esther, having slept off the effects of her rescue work, had, as she had expected, been put on night duty in the ward until Frederica should be fit to work again. She said, uncertainly, standing at his bedside: "Are you trying to flirt with me again?"

"Yes," said William, and caught her hand and kissed it, and turned it over and kissed the palm and each of the fingers, and then lay still with his cheek against it holding it very closely in both his own.

William held this small, slim hand in his own, and looked up into brown eyes, suddenly alight with tenderness; he smiled and said: "O, darling!" and pulled her down to him and held her close to his heart.

Chaos reigned in St. Elizabeth's that evening. "Hey, nurse, you haven't given me my hot drink!" "Have one of mine, mate, she's given me three!" "What's this, nurse?—there's nothing but 'ot water in my mug . . . !" "Oi, nurse, there's only a bit o' cocoa powder in mine! You must be in love, nurse; that's what it is. Nurse Sanson's in love!"

F.D.R. SIGNS BILL FOR SIMPLIFIED TAX PLAN IN '45

30 Million Freed of Figuring Job.

Washington, D. C., May 30 (AP).—President Roosevelt today signed legislation relieving 30 million taxpayers of further tax computations and simplifying procedures for 20 million other taxpayers.

The simplification measure, passed unanimously by congress, repeals the war time "victory" tax and reshuffles the normal and surtax structures, while holding most individual burdens substantially where they were before.

The new law revises the withholding levy against wages and salaries, beginning next Jan. 1, so as to deduct the full tax liability of two-thirds of the taxpayers, making their withholdings their actual taxes.

Applies to 1944 Income.

The new method of computing taxes applies to all 1944 income, but there will be no change in pay roll deductions this year.

The government will do the figuring, on 1944 income, for the 30 million persons on wages and salaries earning $5,000 or less. The others—making over $5,000 or with more than $100 annual income from sources other than wages or salaries—still must file returns.

1. Victory tax: Forget it. It's repealed.

2. Normal tax: It does to your pocketbook just about what the old victory tax used to do. The rate is 3 per cent, against the previous normal 6 per cent rate, and exemptions and deductions are different. In figuring it, deduct 10 per cent of your income [to a maximum of $500], and from what you have left subtract another $500. Take 3 per cent of the remaining figure, and that is your normal tax.

How Normal Tax Works.

Thus a person making $3,500 would subtract $350 [10 per cent of income] and $500, leaving $2,650. Taking 3 per cent of the latter figure, you get your normal tax—$79.50. This system works regardless of the number of dependents.

Surtaxes, rates and exemptions are adjusted, the rate beginning at 20 per cent instead of the present 13 per cent. The new bill provides a uniform exemption of $500 each for the taxpayer and each person dependent on him, and a flat deduction of 10 per cent of income.

Assuming that the $3,500 man has a wife and one child, he first subtracts $1,500 [$500 for each], and then deducts $350 [10 per cent of income]. His surtax is 20 per cent of the remaining $1,650, or $330.

The 10 per cent deduction in both normal and surtax computations is in lieu of contributions to religious, educational, and charitable causes, other taxes, and interest paid. However, any person who can establish that his contributions, other taxes, and interest paid are more than 10 per cent may file a return listing his actual payments, and get credit.

TOUR TOMORROW TO STUDY LAKE LINE PROTECTION

Experts Will Discuss Shore Problems.

Modern methods of shore protection and short and long range aspects of the problem of preserving the economic and recreational values of sea coasts and lake shores against erosion will be discussed at the 16th annual meeting of the American Shore and Beach Preservation association today and tomorrow.

Today's sessions will be held in the Palmer House and will include talks by J. Spencer Smith, president of the association; Robert Kingery, general manager of the Chicago Regional Planning association; Brig. Gen. John J. Kingman, senior member of the beach erosion board of the United States corps of engineers; J. Harlan Bretz, professor of geology at the University of Chicago; J. Raymond Tiffany, counsel for the association; and representatives of the cement, steel, and wood preservatives industries.

Inspection Tour Tomorrow.

Tomorrow will be devoted to an inspection of shore protection installations in Chicago and along the north shore. Delegates will have lunch in the Edgewater Beach hotel and hear an address by Newton B. Drury, director of the national park service.

Mayor Kelly and engineers of the Chicago park district are expected to represent the city at today's sessions, which will be open to those interested.

The beach erosion board of the United States engineers will hold sessions in the Palmer House today concurrently with those of the association. Gen. Kingman and the board will inspect lake damage in Milwaukee county, Wisconsin, tomorrow.

Some Lake Damage Reported.

Kingery said yesterday that altho no sensational damage had yet been done to Chicago and suburban lake front installations by the current high water levels, there had been much minor damage to bulkheads and other protective devices. He implied that if the rise in the lake level continued, and shore properties were not protected, damage similar to that of last year might follow. [In last summer's high level of 581.5 feet above sea level, street ends were damaged and beaches wholly or partially submerged.]

The United States engineers' office here could not give a definite opinion as to whether last summer's high level would be exceeded this year.

Maj. McLaughlin Better; Quits Hospital for Home

DAY BY DAY ON THE FARM

The FARM by Gail Compton

May 30, 1944

THE sight of a beautiful collie dog ranging the countryside to drive cattle home provides a distinctive picture of rural life. "Shep," the collie owned by the manager of the Wheaton farm, probably is capable of such work, yet the only title he has earned thus far is the "short distance shepherd champion of DuPage county."

Shep's herding efforts consist of going into the cattle barn every morning to drive Hereford steers from the barn to the adjacent feedlot—a distance of about 40 feet. No all-day treks for him, no chance to emulate his Scotch ancestors which drove their masters' sheep and cattle many miles to market.

Shep Awaits Test.

Shep shows clear evidence of the collie's instinct to work with live stock, but the Herefords in this lot no longer are sent to pasture to give Shep a real test. They're being kept in a concrete feedlot for fattening prior to being sent to market. Shep will have to wait until another contingent of cattle is brought to the farm for pasturage, then he'll be tested to see if he can drive them 400 yards as well as he herds them 40 feet.

The dog does a professional job on his present assignment. The men fill the feed bunks about 6:30 each morning. As soon as Shep hears them stirring around the barn he scratches at the kitchen door until some one lets him out. Then he races to the barn, routs the Herefords out of their straw bedding, and nips and barks and races thru the building until the last of the steers is routed. If a stray animal tries to loiter in a corner of the barn, Shep worries him until he follows the leaders.

Ducklings Stay Close.

The ducklings now racing around the barnyard of the Wheaton farm are experts in this same game of follow the leader. We watched three families of mallards waddling around the barnyard the other day. Rarely were the ducklings more than a yard away from their mothers. The comical youngsters are so shy that a stranger sends them into flurries of excited racing.

If all the mallard and Muscovy hens have successful hatches there will be a surplus of ducks this season. There are half a dozen nests in the duck house [with two mallards sitting side by side on one large nest] and additional birds incubating eggs in nesting houses and under brush piles all over the barnyard.

★The GARDEN★

Gardeners should carefully check rows for aphis [plant lice], now starting to attack many types of flowers and vegetables. They are especially active on roses, cabbages, and peas, but also are attacking beans, melon crops, lettuce, and other plants. The first evidence of aphis is a drooping or wilting of the leaves. By examining the undersides of such leaves the gardener will find tiny insects, usually green and about 1/32 of an inch long. These are the aphis, which damage plants by sucking the plant juices.

Gardeners should battle aphis as soon as the damage is noticeable, since they multiply so fast that they become increasingly difficult to overcome as the season progresses. The specific insecticide against aphis is nicotine sulphate, which is available under several trade names in most hardware and seed stores. The sulphate should be mixed with water according to label directions, and the spray directed to the undersides of the leaves.

Nudists, Aged 4, 3, and 1, Seized in Front of Home

Policemen Joseph Pojgaj and William Oswald of the Warren av. station yesterday rounded up three little nudists who were sunning themselves in front of their home at 1756 Jackson blvd. The youngsters, Russo, 4; Kathy Jean, 3; and Betty Ann, nearly 2, were turned over to their mother, Mrs. Vera Zuranski. She works until midnight in a war plant and the children went out while she was sleeping, she explained. Her husband, John, 29, a soldier, is expected home on furlough tomorrow.

SEES U. S. JEEPS SMASH PARADE OF COSTA RICANS

How New President Rode to Power.

BY STANLEY JOHNSTON.

Costa Rica recently inaugurated a president who was supported in his election campaign by soldiers and police using United States lend-lease jeeps to disperse crowds favoring his opponent.

The election, which was followed by charges of ballot box stuffing, was asserted by some Costa Ricans to have ended their little country's right to boast that it is the last remaining democracy in Central America.

Sen. Hugh Butler of Nebraska recently told congress, after an investigative tour of Latin America, that the effect of our policy of lend-leasing war material to those countries is to provide them with military equipment for use in internal politics.

Details Blue Penciled.

A strict censorship in Costa Rica, which prohibits newspapers from publishing news the government does not like and stops similar outgoing cables and letters, has prevented the circulation in this country of many details concerning the election.

The balloting was held Feb. 14 to choose a successor to President Rafael Angel Calderon Guardia upon the expiration of his four year term. Calderon Guardia was not a candidate for reëlection, the constitution prohibiting a president from succeeding himself. The candidates were Dr. Teodoro Picado, an attorney, who was Calderon Guardia's choice as his successor, and Leon Cortez, who had been president immediately before Calderon Guardia.

The preëlection campaign stirred high political fervor, unusual for little Costa Rica which is traditionally proud of its democratic institutions. Picado not only had the support of Calderon Guardia but of the Communist party, which had changed its name to Vanguardia a few months before the election. Opposition to Picado was not based on personal objections to him but on dislike for his backers, particularly Calderon Guardia who had tried to alter the constitution in 1943 to extend his own term but had given up when he encountered a wave of popular resentment.

Attended Foes' Rallies.

This correspondent was present at rallies held for both candidates, and witnessed the incidents which many Costa Ricans termed indicative of President Calderon Guardia's efforts to turn his office over to the man of his choice.

Eight days before the election Picado held his final rally in San Jose, the capital, and Calderon Guardia had special trains and buses run from all parts of the country to bring people to the Picado meeting. A crowd attended, but it was small compared with that which turned out for Cortez a week later.

There were no special trains or buses for the Cortez rally. They were not permitted for the occasion. The administration revived and saw to it that the police enforced an ancient and long unused law limiting travel on coffee trucks, a common form of hitch-hiking in Costa Rica.

Walked 40 Miles.

The only means of travel remaining to Cortez's supporters were walking and horseback riding. Those they used in a most determined manner. Many walked all day Saturday and thru the night, coming from as far as 40 miles. Pony riders covered greater distances to reach the capital and attend the rally for their candidate.

There they met with more obstacles. As they gathered in groups in the capital's streets, soldiers and police riding in lend-lease jeeps and army trucks rushed thru the streets. Officers pushed their way into the crowds and swung lustily with the flat side of their long swords. Soon the streets contained few Cortez supporters, who appeared to this onlooker to be conducting themselves in an orderly manner.

Despite police interference, the Cortez adherents continued to gather and parade thru Saturday afternoon and throut the night. As police broke up the crowds, the paraders would scatter and form again. This went on until dawn when an orderly march to the rally area outside of the city was begun.

Despite police interference and travel difficulties the Cortez rally drew twice the crowd that had attended the Picado meeting. Many Costa Ricans confidently predicted Cortez would win by a margin of 6 to 1. But when the vote was counted after the balloting the next day, it was announced that Picado had won 80,000 to 30,000.

Vote Fraud Charged.

Complaints of ballot box stuffing were being made before the polls had closed. Many voters said that when they went to schools to vote, they were told the records showed that they had voted. Cortez's organizers charged that henchmen of Manuel Moro, leftist labor leader given extensive powers by Calderon Guardia, visited polling places and picked up voting cards of thousands of Cortez's supporters which they later used in casting votes for Picado.

Tho Costa Rica has a population of only 650,000—the smallest in the western hemisphere—the presidency is worth fighting for, particularly with the United States pouring millions of "good neighbor" dollars into the little country.

Sen. Butler told congress that United States aid thru federal spending and lending to Costa Rica amounted to more than $200 for each family in the state. In addition to the United States military pay roll spent there, the United States met pay rolls for Costa Rica's section of the Inter-American highway, and made rubber purchases of over $300,000 and coffee and banana purchases, Butler said. He listed United States gifts and loans to Costa Rica as follows:

Construction material credits from the Export-Import bank, $5,000,000; dollar exchange credits, $2,000,000; health and sanitation program, $500,000, and an agricultural program, $100,000.

Imports Top Exports.

It is probably fortunate for Costa Ricans that the United States is directing this golden stream to the state. Tho the small population has an adequate area of excellent land for the production of all it can eat, and should supply a surplus of many products for export, Costa Rica has piled up foreign debits year after year by importing more than it exports. An examination of its assets indicates that it will be many years liquidating its foreign debt despite United States philanthrophy unless its people produce more and limit their foreign spending.

The people are mostly agriculturists and enjoy a fair standard of living. The country—which is next to the smallest state in Central America, only El Salvador being smaller—is rich in minerals but most of them are unexploited. Cattle are raised in large quantities and various hardwoods are exported, but coffee and bananas are the important crops, the latter chiefly dominated by foreign capital.

GENERAL HEADS MILITARY JUNTA RULING ECUADOR

Promises to Intensify Ties to Americas.

QUITO, Ecaduor, May 30 (AP).—Gen. Luis Larrea Alba assumed leadership tonight of the military provisional government which took control in Ecuador after revolutionists, in a bloody coup yesterday at Guayaquil, had forced the resignation of President Carlos Arroyo del Rio.

Succeeds Colonel.

Col. Pablo Borja first headed the provisional government but was succeeded by Alba, who represents not only the army but the Revolutionary Vanguard, a political party.

The provisional government stated that its aims included "strengthening the international personality of Ecuador and intensifying its relations with the other American nations." It pledged continued strong support of the allied nations with the "repression of all Nazi-Fascist activities and other anti-democratic activities which endanger the nation and the continent."

Awaits Former President.

The provisional government announced, in a decree, that it would retain power until the arrival of Dr. Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra, former president in exile in Colombia, who has been invited by the revolutionists to take over the presidency. Velasco Ibarra was reported to have crossed the frontier into Ecuador.

At the same time Arroyo prepared to leave by plane for Colombia. After his resignation he took refuge in the Colombian embassy. Previously it had been reported he had sought haven in the United States embassy.

POISON ALCOHOL DEATHS BLAMED ON WPB POLICIES

New York, May 30 (AP).—As the holiday week-end death toll attributed by police to poison alcohol rose to 14 today, a liquor trade association official said: "The powers in Washington . . . have these deaths upon their heads."

Timothy P. Guiney, president of the National Tavern association and the Kings County Liquor Dealers' association, said in a statement that the deaths could have been averted if the war production board had permitted "wood alcohol usage in commercial products and released grain alcohol for beverage purposes."

OIL FIRMS BEGIN FIGHT TODAY ON BLACK MARKET

Efforts to cut down the gasoline black market in the middle west will be begun today as the oil industry and the regional leaders of the office of price administration cooperate in inaugurating a 90 day drive.

Industry leaders announced they are putting 1,000 employes into the work and probably as many more employes of OPA will take part. In addition the industry will spend $200,000, mostly on newspaper advertising. "Civil alliance" groups, formed under the auspices of the OPA in several hundred communities, will call public meetings.

House to house canvasses of drivers will be made. Every car owner will be asked to coöperate with the OPA program, to refuse all offers of spurious or other illegitimate coupons. Each driver will be urged neither to "give nor take" coupons from any source and to indorse his own books as soon as he receives them.

Navy Board Investigates Death of Hanged Officer

Chicago Soldier Killed in Crash at Camp Ellis

Camp Ellis, Ill., May 30 (AP).—Pvt. Gerald A. Zehme, 35, of 10437 Bensley av., Chicago, was killed and Sgt. James R. Nollo, 23, of Homer City, Penn., was critically injured today, when the weapons carrier in which they were riding was sideswiped by a truck on the military reservation.

HOLD INQUESTS TODAY ON SUITOR AND HIS VICTIM

An inquest into the deaths of Mrs. Marie Knight, 45, of 951 Belden av., and her suitor, John Vess, 61, in the latter's apartment at 2314 Southport av., will be held at 10 a. m. today at 1361 Fullerton av.

The bodies, with throats slashed, were found Monday after Vess' daughter, Mrs. Marie Bukraba, had notified police she could not gain entrance to her father's apartment. Police said Vess had killed Mrs. Knight and then committed suicide.

Vess wrote a note to his daughter, explaining he was tired of Mrs. Knight's "two-timing," police said. The daughter said Vess and Mrs. Knight, a divorcee and mother of three, had been going together for a year.

BOY, 13, ADMITS HE KILLED FARM WIFE, SHOT MATE

House Springs, Mo., May 30 (AP).—A 13 year old boy, object of a search by a posse, surrendered meekly today and Capt. Thomas Whitecotton of the state highway patrol said the youth admitted shooting a farm couple with whom he had been living near House Springs.

The boy signed a statement, Whitecotton said, that he killed Mrs. Andrew Kley, 57, with a shotgun yesterday and then wounded Kley before fleeing after the farmer wrested the gun from him. Kley's condition is not critical.

The boy, Frank Beck, was placed with the Kleys by the St. Louis board of children's guardians. A charge of first degree murder was filed by Prosecuting Atty. W. Oliver Rasch.

Whitecotton said the boy had brooded over the Kleys' refusal to permit him to visit his mother.

Park Lagoon Is Dragged on Boys' Clothing Clew

Coast guards yesterday dragged the lagoon in Marquette park, but failed to find any traces of two boys whose clothing was found Monday on the shore of the lagoon and who, it was feared, had drowned. However, no one saw any boys near the water at that spot, no boys have been reported missing, and police said it was a possible hoax.

Shumway Twins Keep Abreast in Winning Navy Promotions

BY JUDITH CASS.

MRS. PHILIP RAYMOND SHUMWAY'S twin sons, John and Peter, whose close resemblance to each other always has been confusing to their friends, have kept pace with each other in receiving promotions in the navy. Their latest is to lieutenant commander, a rank which they attained at the same time, altho they are stationed far from each other, Peter in North Africa as a naval flyer and John on a destroyer escort in the Atlantic.

At present Lt. Comdr. Peter Shumway's wife and baby, Geoffrey, are in Evanston visiting his mother. When they leave the middle of next month they will go to New York to take an apartment. The Shumway twins' sister, Mrs. Robert L. Elliott Jr., remained in Evanston when Pvt. Elliott reported to Camp Butner, N. C.

Lt. Richard Cragg of the navy and his wife, who have been living in Washington, D. C., recently purchased a house there for an unusual reason. Each enjoys playing in an amateur orchestra, but when the apartment below theirs was taken by war workers who are employed at odd hours, the Craggs were prevented from practicing out of consideration for their neighbors. Now they can practice to their hearts' content.

Lt. Cragg's brother, Henry, recently received a double promotion in the navy in the matter of a few minutes. Having been inducted as a seaman third class, he was advanced to first class upon completing an examination and immediately afterward was notified that he had received a commission as lieutenant, junior grade. He also is in Washington now. The officers are sons of Mrs. George L. Cragg, who is getting next season's lecture program at the Woman's Athletic club into shape before leaving June 10 for her summer home at Lakeside, Mich.

Other Service Notes.

Now wearing the 2½ stripes of a lieutenant commander in the navy is Thomas M. Torrey, who with his wife, the former Betty Brawley, and their two little girls has been living in Washington for the last two years while he has been en-

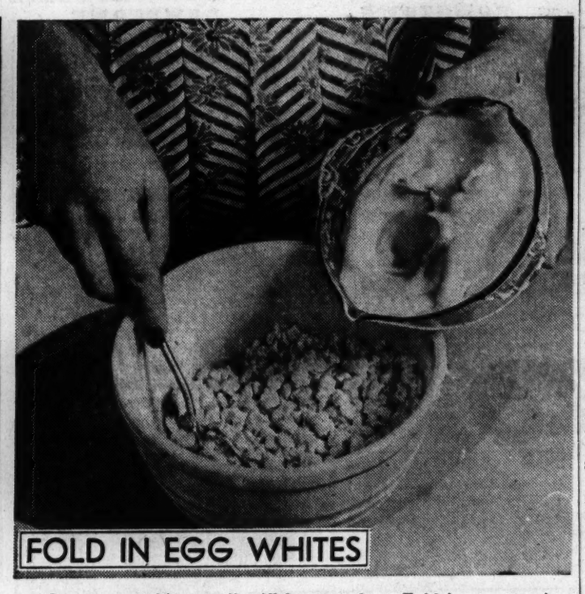
Mary Meade Shows How to Make Tasty Corn Fritters

1. Combine 1½ cups canned whole kernel corn with 2 beaten egg yolks. Add 1 cup flour sifted with ¾ teaspoon each of baking powder and salt.



2. Beat 2 egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold into corn mixture, stirring lightly until all of the ingredients are thoroly blended.

3. Heat deep fat to 360-375 degrees, then carefully drop the corn mixture by spoonfuls into fat to avoid spattering. Cook until golden brown.

4. Drain fritters on absorbent paper and serve hot with maple sirup and crisp bacon strips. This recipe will make about 10 fritters.

U. S. Can't Feed All Europe's Millions, Says Packing Official

BY ROBERT YOUNG.

The United States cannot meet the commitments of the administration and feed all of the millions of Europeans after they have been liberated from Nazi domination, Dr. Roy C. Newton, vice president of Swift & Co., said yesterday. He spoke at the fifth annual conference of the Institute of Food Technologists in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Dr. Roy C. Newton. [Moffett photo.]

Estimates of the extent of such help possible from this country indicate that even tho Americans tighten their belts, lower their standard of living by consumption of less food and of less desirable food, and at the same time increase farm production to its maximum limit, the United States can feed only a small fraction of the people said to be in dire hunger, Dr. Newton asserted.

He told the food scientists that there has been much complacency regarding the United States food supply and this country's ability to feed the world. He added that facts about food "have been twisted and misinterpreted generally." Calculations prove, he said, that despite government plans and promises the excess of food remaining after American military and civilian and lend-lease requirements have been taken care of is not sufficient to feed Europe.

"There are more than 300 million people in the countries dominated by the Nazis if we include Germany," Dr. Newton continued. "At a recent meeting, an official of the government's program stated that we cannot hope to do more than supply a small fraction of the calories needed to prevent starvation of these repatriated people. He indicated our goal should be to supply 10 per cent of their calories, and in a few places to supply a quantity of high quality proteins. If we furnish only 10 per cent of their minimum calories, we might help 220 million people."

Dr. Newton recommended that the government study reliable estimates on the general supply of all nutrients available in this country as compared with nutrient requirements. In this manner, he said, it could be determined readily whether there actually is enough food in this country for feeding millions in Europe.

William A. Patterson, president of United Air Lines, warned institute members and the public against too emotional an enthusiasm over the immediate post-war future of air transport. Even with war inspired technical achievements, he pointed out, the cost of transporting freight by air will be almost prohibitively high as compared with the cost of transportation by rail or water. However, he predicted increased air travel, and at cheaper fares than are now possible.

At another session of the institute conference, which has drawn 1,000 members from all sections of the United States and Canada, W. E. Broeg, chief of industrial plant feeding, war food administration, said that the problem of absenteeism may be solved to a considerable extent thru proper feeding of war workers. He said that studies showed that when workers are served properly balanced meals in the plants absenteeism declines noticeably.

Vernon W. Sherman, manager of the industrial electronics division of the Federal Telephone and Radio corporation, Newark, N. J., described a recently perfected dielectric heating device which will cook food "to a turn" in a few seconds. The device, known as megatherm, creates any degree of heat thruout a given mass with absolute uniformity, he said.

Mediterranean Area WACS Exceptionally Healthy, Says Officer

Washington, D. C., May 30 [Special].—The less coddled the life, the healthier women are. This is the conclusion Maj. Margaret Janeway of the army medical corps has reached on the basis of her 14 month experience in watching over the health of the hard working, rigorous living WACs in Italy and North Africa.

Maj. Janeway, who went across with the first WAC contingent and just has returned on rotation duty, told a press conference that all the WACs in the Mediterranean area are exceptionally healthy and that the 5th army WACs, who have been living in tents very close behind the fighting lines, "have an amazing health record, have had from the beginning, and are never sick." She said she believes the vigorous lives they lead must be responsible.

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

Continuing its survey of women in uniform working in the Chicago area, this department has reviewed the 1,350 WAVES, 190 of them officers, on duty in the city and in naval installations on the north shore. Women in navy blue, numerically the largest group serving in the Chicago area, fill posts varying from the clerical to the highly technical.

The WAVE complement of 221 enlisted women and 11 officers at the Glenview naval air station, 20 miles north of Chicago, yesterday marked its first anniversary. Glenview WAVES work in 30 offices and shops, doing essential jobs in the postoffice, radio shop, education office, and in aviation training.

They are parachute riggers, aviation machinists' mates, Link trainer instructors, aerographers' mates, and control tower operators. Navy women at the station also are yeomen [secretaries], storekeepers, pharmacists' mates, radiomen, and telegraphers. One WAVE, working in the assembly and repair department, is a plane captain.

The largest single contingent of WAVES, 800 of them, is on duty at the Great Lakes naval training center, in the medical, commissary, ordnance, administration, public relations, and form release departments. The station hospital has the services of most of the women, WAVES especially trained to care for navy men and their dependents.

Women have replaced men in the hospital as property and accounting technicians, in the record offices, and in the headquarters of the commandant. One WAVE keeps the log in the hospital receiving building. Others do clerical work in the neuropsychiatric ward, giving tests to sailors returned from combat zones, in order to determine the course of treatment.

WAVES also are on duty managing the wards, doing the work of corpsmen under the supervision of trained nurses. Corpsmen's tasks include keeping patients' charts and giving prescribed medication. Ten WAVE operating room technicians, who "scrub" [keep instruments sterile and available] for surgeons and check surgical materials, are serving under the chief nurse, who saw duty at Pearl Harbor with the hospital ship Solace.

The medical laboratory uses the skill of a WAVE trained in giving blood chemistry and other tests. The out-patient department has women handling the appointments of sailors' dependents who receive maternity and medical care.

Two of the most important medical tasks which WAVES fill at Great Lakes are occupational therapy and physiotherapy. Their services are vital to the complete recovery of navy men suffering from shock and others who need to regain the use of arms or legs thru heat, exercise, and manipulation. Great Lakes WAVES also work as dental assistants.

In the ordnance division, WAVES issue and check arms and keep inventories. Sometimes, in dungarees, they clean guns.

A WAVE officer is assistant to the head of the commissary. In that capacity she has charge of all foodstuffs and menus for the entire station. Commissary food orders are made in carload and ton lots. Converting gross figures down to platefuls per man, and vice versa, is her job. As a civilian she was a hospital dietitian.

Twelve WAVES work in the station's 20 galleys and two receiving plants, where perishable foods are kept in cold storage.

On duty at the naval air technical training center, 87th and Anthony sts., are 40 WAVES who work in the postoffice, run mimeograph presses, disburse salaries, issue and maintain stores, check supplies, and, as yeomen, have jobs in administration, keeping personnel records, and handling transfers. One of the WAVE storekeepers sings with the station band.

Twelve WAVES, two of them officers, handle the administrative phase of the WAVE study program at the Chicago School of Aircraft Instruments, 2200 Lawrence av. Approximately 200 WAVES are in training at the school, learning to maintain and repair many types of instruments used on navy planes.

Thirty WAVES specialists and officers in two Chicago procurement offices sign up women volunteers for navy training and duty. Another complement of women in blue administers the V-12 program at the University of Chicago, in which men students study aerology. WAVE officers also participate in the aerology study schedule.

[Another in a series of articles about the women's services in Chicago will appear later in this column.]

Wedding

Saturday in the Precious Blood church, Congress st. and Western av., where they were parochial schoolmates. Mr. Smith is the son of Sgt. Hugh Smith of the Chicago av. police station and Mrs. Smith of Gladys av. The Smiths have two other sons in the navy, Robert J. and Thomas. Another son, James, will enter the navy in August.

gaged in government work. Comdr. and Mrs. Torrey will continue to make Washington their home, altho Mrs. Torrey and the children may go to Cape Cod for the warm weather months.

Mrs. Arthur Dixon, who plans to return to Lake Forest this summer with her children, has received word that her husband has been promoted from major to lieutenant colonel in the army air forces. He is serving in Italy. Mrs. Dixon has been living in New York while Emily attends Milton academy and Elizabeth the Ethel Walker school.

Samuel H. Brown has been advanced to the rank of first lieutenant in the army air forces, his wife, the former Nathalie Bell, has heard. While Lt. Brown is stationed in England, his wife and her sister, Miss Margaret Bell, are at home in Winnetka. Their parents, the Laird Bells, are in Washington, D. C.

William Merritt Belding has been advanced to the rank of lieutenant, senior grade, in the navy. He is a son of the junior Hiram H. Beldings and is serving in the Pacific.

Wedding News.

Mrs. William Gilbert Peacock and her daughters, Mrs. Grier D. Patterson and Mrs. James R. Veeneman, who were recalled to Evanston from Florida suddenly by the news that another of Mrs. Peacock's daughters, Miss June Dorothy Peacock, was planning to be married, are leaving tonight for another long trip, this time to California. The bride-to-be and her mother and sisters are en route to Laguna Beach, where Miss Peacock's marriage to Capt. William Donald Regan of the marine air forces will take place Tuesday. The bride's father is not making the trip west.

Mrs. Patterson will be her sister's only attendant at the ceremony, to be performed in the chapel of Fr. Bede Scully, base chaplain. Capt. Henry Simon will serve as best man. The bride attended Mount St. Joseph academy and the School of the Art Institute. Her fiancé, son of Mrs. William D. Regan of Pendleton, Ore., studied at the University of Oregon and at George Washington university. He recently returned from 11 months' overseas service, having received a Presidential citation and the air medal for completing 36 missions. He and his bride will live in Laguna Beach.

June 17 is the date set for the marriage of Miss Patti Burnham, daughter of the Raymond Burnhams of E. 45th st., and William John Woolley of the army air forces, son of the Robert E. Woolleys of Dayton, O. The ceremony will take place in Bond chapel, with a small reception following in the Burnham home. Mr. Woolley and his bride will live in Dayton while he is stationed at Wright field.

Here and There.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Sise [Susan Miller] of Wellesley Hills, Mass., are being congratulated on the birth of their third daughter Monday in Boston. The baby, who will be named Eleanor after her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Lincoln F. Sise of Brookline, Mass., is the 12th grandchild of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Miller of Winnetka.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Kurtz are saying good-by to their Chicago friends as they will leave around June 8 to live in the east. They have taken a house in Greenwich, Conn., for the summer, and will miss the activities of the Ravinia Festival season, tho Mr. Kurtz's brother, Efrem Kurtz, will be here to conduct the Chicago Symphony orchestra during one week of the festival. Mrs. Kurtz's mother, Mrs. John B. Bellair, will return soon to Australia.

Members of the Saddle and Cycle club who have taken war garden plots this season are busy with cultivation and planting. The pride of the club is Miss Laura Sprague's garden, which is double size and described as "perfectly magnificent" by other amateur gardeners. Mrs. John Root has not taken a garden this year as she is going to look after the flower beds on the club grounds, with assistance from Mrs. Wells Farnham. The Farnhams, the Thomas Underwoods, the Paget Cadys, Mr. and Mrs. Winfield T. Durbin II., and the Louis F. Watermulders are others who have taken gardens.

Miss Janet Carle Ingram and two of her Smith college classmates, Miss Madeline Clark of Washington Depot, Conn., and Miss Joyce Kissock of Laurelton, N. J., have gone to Albuquerque, N. M., to visit another school friend, Miss Charlotte Cornish, for several weeks. Miss Clark and Miss Kissock were weekend guests in the home of Miss Ingram's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Ingram, before going south.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Straw in the Wind.

School teachers, in touch with the younger generation, have a pretty good idea which way the wind is blowing. Witness the kindergarten teacher who was surprised to discover the keen interest of one little boy in naming the first President of the United States. "Franklin Washington," he said.

From Overseas.

American girls are good-looking girls—
A tiresome, old cliché—
But, brother, you don't know HOW good they look
Until you've been away!

Smoking in Offices.

Forty-four offices returned answers to a questionnaire sent out by the Office Management association to determine the policy toward men and women smoking in the office. Eighteen of the offices permit men to smoke at any time but do not permit women to smoke. Three offices allow men and women to smoke at any time in any place. There were nine offices where men smoke at any time in any place and women smoke only during lunch or rest periods and in private offices, restrooms or specially provided smoking rooms. Six offices limit smoking [for both men and women] to lunch hours and to restrooms or private offices; two approve smoking by either men or women only in private offices, and one company permits men to smoke in private offices but restricts women to smoking in restrooms and during lunch periods.

The reason for these policies the questionnaire did not reveal. Is it because women, in general, are less tidy smokers than men? Or is it because men disapprove of women smoking? Perhaps our readers can make this clear.

It's a Gift.

Writing in Stet magazine, Henry M. Dawes describes one of the outstanding qualities of Pat Ward, dean of industrial editors: 'He had the ability to be friendly without being patronizing and, while it may seem strange to apply the word to very young people, he had an appreciation of our dignity. This was decidedly his attitude toward the people in our company and he had an unusual gift of projecting it."

Mystery Solved.

I know why the mysterious woman in the taxi was collecting cartons from south side hotels as mentioned in a recent column. She was moving!

I'm packing right now and, as far as I'm concerned, cartons have all gone to war. Try moving without them! Nothing crazy about that woman—just smart. READER.

The Little Woman.

Overheard on the elevated train: One boss' wife to another: "Just who are the bosses these white collar girls talk about who possess all the qualities of consideration, fairness, sense of humor, and buy their secretaries sweetmeats so they have 'All This and Candy, too'? Or rather—who are the secretaries!"

Presbyterians' Patience Asked in Merger Plan

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The Rt. Rev. Henry St. George Tucker of New York, presiding bishop of the American Episcopal church, yesterday pleaded for Presbyterian patience in the development of a plan for merger of Presbyterian and Episcopal churches. He was the fraternal delegate from the Episcopal church to the 156th general assembly of the Presbyterian church, meeting in the Stevens hotel.

Bishop Tucker told the assembly that Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin's appearance as fraternal delegate to the general convention of the Episcopal church in Cleveland, O., last October, was "the highlight of the convention." Dr. Coffin was then the moderator of the Presbyterian church. Bishop Tucker explained that the subject of union, most appropriate for him, he said, to speak on, was one on which, as presiding bishop, he could say little.

"I am precluded as presiding bishop from saying anything on a controversial issue, and I am also restrained because of the disappointingly negative action of my church last fall," Bishop Tucker said. "There is great difference of opinion in my church on 'the basic principles of Episcopal-Presbyterian union' as prepared by the joint commissions, but there is no difference of opinion on the basic objective of unity."

[One of the earliest resolutions adopted by the Presbyterian assembly asked that the Episcopal convention of 1946 find a formula for merger. The merger proposal came from the Episcopal church, and in view of the failure of the 1943 convention to do more than vote for continuance of negotiations, the Presbyterian resolution was interpreted by many as a query into the good faith of the Episcopal proposal.]

Bishop Tucker said the whole plan should be deferred until the needed "preponderant majority" in the Episcopal convention could be mustered in the plan's support. He explained that many persons in his church confuse unity with uniformity—"a unity of the spirit strong enough to admit many points of view," adding that it would be a dull world if everybody looked, talked, and thought alike.

The highly controversial report of the standing committee on social education and action reached the floor late yesterday afternoon with debate expected today. The report included recommendations on industrial relations, a campaign of education for world order, international relations, political action, church and war veterans, social tensions, juvenile welfare, and economic security.

Thru the Looking Glass

Fun in the sun is great stuff, physically and psychologically, but a burn is really a stupid kind of sin against good sense and good looks. You'll probably recover from a burn in a couple of days but its ravaging effect on the texture of your skin will stick with you.

On these first ventures into the sun that is happily with us after a long dreary spring, don't try to acquire your suntan in one day. Take it easy. If you heed the advice of physicians you won't sun yourself more than three of four minutes the first day out.

By all means use protectives or tan promoters but follow directions carefully and be sure that you exercise common sense. Oil your skin generously before you go out to bask and again when you come in. If you've been so unfortunate as to acquire a burn use a soothing ointment or lotion that will relieve the sting. And drink lots and lots of water after your outing.

If your burn is a really bad one, you should have medical attention—but we'd like to point out that you might ask for it rather shamefacedly. In these times when physicians are seriously overworked because their number in the community is so sharply reduced it's close to criminal to add to their burden as a result of what is, after all, sheer folly on your part. However, a deep burn is dangerous and requires prompt and expert attention.

Be especially careful of a burn if you're near or on the water. Dry your skin before sunbathing; otherwise you'll literally fry it.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 30.—Since Maj. Clark Gable will soon be out of the army, many stories are being planned for him. His first at Metro may be "Stairway to Paradise" by Sgt. Albert Depina [soon to be published by MacMillan], with Arthur Hornblow producing. Clark will play a construction engineer. The setting is in Colombia. Orson Welles, whose metier is radio, was never asked by our victory committee to do anything for war bond drives, so he decided to do something himself. He's now assistant to Secy. Morgenthau. He makes another overnight jump to Washington this week, and will be on hand for drive opening in Texarkana, with many big shots from Washington including Morgenthau. If Henry's smart [and I think he is] he'll get some tips from the voice on how to produce those dulcet tones. . . . Paramount's offer of two million for "Voice of the Turtle" was turned down. Alfred de Liagre still thinks he'll get three million.

There's a Smart Girl.

Joe Mankiewicz cracked out with a huge Chinese dinner for the cast and crew of "Keys of the Kingdom." I'm told his wife, Rose Stradner, who plays the feminine lead, will surprise every one. Now she's decided she wants a career after all. . . . Most surprised girl in town was Frances Rafferty. I had her, rather than Frances Gifford, altar bound with Benny Thau. Lucky thing Rafferty's fiance, Lt. Dewey Barnes, had just left town or I'd have had a fight on my hands. . . . I don't know if it means a reconciliation, but Peggy Stewart and Don Barry are going out together again. . . . Dorothy Gilmore of Metro's "Ziegfeld Follies" will have a plush wedding Aug. 23 when she marries Corp. Dan Raye, song writer. He wrote "Milk Man Keep Those Bottles Quiet."

They've Grabbed the Idea.

Jesse Lasky phoned me that since my story about him appeared he's had three different studios eager to buy his life story. Now that I've started the ball rolling, the logical one to do Jesse's story would be his cousin, Mervyn Leroy. Jesse brought him to Hollywood. Mervyn followed in Lasky's footsteps. If you can think of a better director, or one who knows Lasky better, you name him. . . . Lawsuit against Betty Smith, author of "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," by descendants of Aunt Cissy, won't bother the picture. The Hays office has already cleaned up the character of Aunt Cissy for the "Tree." . . . It wasn't surprising to me that Chopin music for "Love of Mme. Sand" was recorded by José Iturbi.

Keeping My Fingers Crossed.

It would please me mightily to see Connie Bennett make a smashing success of "Paris Underground." That's a picture one of our major studios should have made as soon as story came out. Connie's already corraled Director Julien Duvivier for it. He's never really had a free hand in our town. Keep it up, Connie, you're going in the right direction. . . . Nat Wolfe tells me Ginger Rogers has already made an album of three records of "Alice in Wonderland" for the Christmas trade next season. He hopes Walt Disney will be hard at work with Ginger in "Alice" by that time. Since Kay Kyser's finished his Columbia picture, he's off to San Francisco to give a benefit, hoping to raise $10,000,000 [that's a good round sum] for a hospital ship. . . . It will be nice seeing Charlie Grapewin back on the screen in "Atlantic City" but I'll bet a cookie the part isn't big enough for him.

Right Down the Middle.

Yvette once shamed a showman into giving a young comic a break. The big guy had lost heavily at the race track, and turned the kid down when he asked for a job, whereupon Yvette remarked, "I hate to think any American would take a chance on a horse and refuse to take one on a man." . . . Bing Crosby and his sons will ride in Leo Carillo's second annual rodeo Sunday at the Coliseum. Gloria Jean is queen. Olsen and Johnson will introduce a novel horsemobile, and the world's greatest cowhands will compete, but our hams will bring home the bacon. . . . Joan Caulfield of the New York "Kiss and Tell" company, who sings and dances, is being groomed for a dramatic actress in our town. . . . Margaret O'Brien is now Princess Ko-Kwa of the Blackfoot tribe. Margaret has been crazy about Indians ever since she saw "Buffalo Bill." She caused quite a stir in the Metro commissary by appearing in a big feather headdress Chief Many Treaties sent her.

Gay Flowered Black Prints Are Effective

BY REA SEEGER.

A summer girl in a flowered black print is the smartest picture on the boulevards. Usually the prints are bright and gay, the floral pattern small but effective, the better to dramatize the charcoal black background. Prints are widely spaced so there is far more black than color.

Most of the current collections of such black prints star dresses that are almost straight sheaths or the modified versions of the needle slim sheath with side or front fullness, the fullness carefully controled so as to keep the silhouette straight and simple. Sleeves have been reduced to mere shadows of their former length, width, and fullness. Many bodices are cut with elaborate wide shoulder seams, some with curved caps of the material, and some with softly tied bows one to a shoulder.

Carnations, in spicy bright realistic colorings, roses, petunias, sweetpeas, daisies, corn flowers, gardenias, and pansies are exquisitely imprinted against dull blacks, in cotton, silks, and rayon mixtures. The silks are especially noteworthy because of the hand blocked effects. These fast vanishing all silk print dresses are beautifully made, reminiscent of the well made creations from Paris.

Necklines are softened with cutout designs of the floral prints and appliqued flat or caught lightly to achieve a real flower garland trim. The same kinds of details trim the sleeves and anchor the side fullness of either bodice and skirt or both. Such fine hand work has to be seen to be properly appreciated.

A big surprise, the printed cotton dresses, of dull black, are exceptionally effective with bright color splashed against the black. They look exactly like the costly printed silks, fit with the same suave figure accent, and are made in the same exquisite manner as the silks.

Care Will Help Save Precious Kitchen Vessels

BY YVONNE CROWLEY.

Much of the wear and tear on kitchen utensils and dispositions can be avoided if pots and pans are properly handled and carefully cleaned each time they're used and foods are never scorched in them. However, accidents will happen occasionally to equipment that gets the best of care, and steps must be taken to repair the damage.

The job of cleaning any cooking vessel can be made easier if water is put into the vessel as soon as food is removed and it is allowed to soak until dish-washing time. Use hot water for greasy and sugary foods and cold water for egg and milk dishes.

To keep aluminum utensils in good condition, wash them with hot, soapy water after each using, then rinse and dry thoroly. A stiff wire or bristle brush can be used to remove food particles, and a weekly cleaning with a scouring pad will keep pans bright and shiny.

The alkalis in vegetables and in water sometimes cause stains on aluminum but these stains are harmless and are removed when acid foods are cooked in the container. Discoloration of this type may be removed quickly by boiling a solution of 3 tablespoons cream of tartar and 1 quart of water in the pan for 10 minutes and allowing the solution to cool in the pan for about 10 minutes longer. In cases of extreme discoloration, it may be necessary to repeat this process. Polishing with a scouring pad will restore the original brightness of the utensil.

Lime deposits in aluminum tea kettles, caused by hard water, can be eliminated by placing the kettle over very low heat without water for 2 or 3 minutes and then tapping the bottom of the kettle lightly with a wooden spoon. If the deposit will not react to this treatment, boil a solution of half vinegar and half water in it for about 10 minutes. Then wash the kettle thoroly.

Enamel will not stain easily until it has become roughened by the action of acids or scouring, so the use of coarse abrasive material to clean enameled utensils should be avoided. If foods stick or burn, boil a weak solution of soda and water in the pan to remove the food particles. If enamel ware chips thru careless treatment, rub the edges of the chipped surface with fine emery cloth to remove sharp edges.

Tin will not rust, but nearly all tin ware has a plated steel base which will rust if the tin covering is worn off and the steel is exposed to moisture. When the luster of tin disappears, no polish will restore it, tho scorched places may be lightened by boiling pans in a strong solution of water and washing soda.

Cast iron utensils do not require careful handling, but they will rust if not kept dry and oiled. Iron can be cleaned with scouring pads and strong soap may be used to remove grease. If iron utensils are to be stored for any length of time, they should be protected with a thin coating of unsalted fat or oil.

Glass and earthenware pottery dishes will crack with sudden changes of temperature, but otherwise they require little care. Soap and water will usually clean glass and pottery, but an occasional rubbing with a scouring pad or abrasive powder may be necessary. This treatment may remove the glossy finish, but it will not damage the material.

Copper kitchen ware requires constant polishing and a solution of salt and vinegar or a commercial cleaner is necessary to remove tarnish.

Since this is strictly a double-dummy affair, never mind the bidding—just accept the contract of seven spades by South and the opening lead of the club queen from West, and go on from there. Don't peek below until and unless you are ready to throw in the sponge.

Win the opening lead with the club king, discarding a heart from the South hand. Cash the ace and king of spades. [West can afford a club discard, but he cannot let go another club later, because it then would be easy to ruff out an extra club trick.] South now ruffs the club deuce and cashes three more trumps. West must discard two hearts or two diamonds—let us suppose he chooses the latter. Dummy's discards, then, are also two diamonds and one heart. Now South leads to the blank diamond ace, cashes the club ace, discarding a heart, and ruffs a low club.

At this point South holds one trump, one heart and one diamond. West holds two hearts and the high club. North holds the ace-four of hearts and a low club. East holds two hearts and the high diamond. Now when South cashes his last trump, West must discard a heart to keep the club. Dummy's club is thereupon abandoned, and East is squeezed in turn. If he gives up the diamond, South's diamond five is good; if he blanks the heart queen, declarer leads to the ace and cashes the heart four.

To Be Popular You Must Have Good Posture

BY MAUREEN DALY.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

You can pull that sweater down long, wear that skirt short, and hang yourself with three strings of pearls—but you can't hide poor posture. You might camouflage it a little, but any gal who goes about with round shoulders and a droopy figure deserves the nickname—"the hag with the sag"—and how would you care for that? Often the honeychile who looks best in clothes isn't strictly a Betty Grable but she's posture-conscious and keeps herself "well-arranged." Of course, it takes energy and a little effort but the result is worth it.

on the SOLID side

Why not conjure up a mental picture of yourself standing with your backbone in a straight line with the backs of your knees. Then try walking that way. This ram-rod stiffness will become more natural before long and you'll find yourself walking like a John Powers model. It gives you a mental lift, too. Take the slouch out of your posture and it goes out of your thinking as well. Life is no fun when you lounge about looking like a fat bundle of fatigue.

The modern high school wardrobe for the well dressed date-bait is out of this atmosphere as far as comfort is concerned, but sloppy sweaters, pleated skirts, plaid sport shirts with the tails to the wind, and baggy station wagon coats are conducive to lazy living, round shoulders, slumping figures, slack muscles—all the unattractive factors that make a girl a sad character, strictly a droop drape.

Even the smoothest sarong can look like last year's sack and snood if it's worn carelessly. To wear a sweater and skirt well takes a certain kind of showmanship; good posture gives you that pedigreed look. Walk as if you think you look like Joan Leslie and before long you may look even loveller.

The Sensitive Child Needs Understanding

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Occasionally my mail will come in bringing sometimes a dozen letters on one sort of behavior difficulty that parents are having. But it is unusual to have the accent fall on sensitiveness.

Several of the children described in these letters were tiny; they cried easily and hardly could be corrected without seeming to be really hurt. Some who were older were just generally super-sensitive, and one would weep at the slightest unhappy trend in a story. This letter, while a little different in that the small boy is not well, still presents a similar problem:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans:

"My boy of 6 is now in the hospital with a nervous and run down condition. He is sensitive, and the doctor said that when he comes home I am not to make him angry and to try to understand him. I will appreciate any advice on problem children."

A great degree of sensitiveness and its effect in making a child feel hurt and unhappy is a rather subtle matter, not simple to deal with or give advice about. For, to begin with, you have a certain natural temperament to deal with. A high degree of sensitiveness is an inherent thing. So a mother and father must take it into account and handle it so that their child is understood and spared unnecessary hurt. At the same time the child is not to be coddled and should be given surroundings and companionship which take him out of himself, always a great help to sensitive persons.

Also these sensitive children should, quite often, be put on a schedule similar to that suggested by us for nervous children. They need more rest, much fresh air, and a reasonable guarding of their energy.

It should comfort mothers to know that some of this young extreme sensitiveness diminishes as children grow older.

Mrs. Peter G., Kokomo, Ind.—If you want to stiffen any miniature flages this coming July 4th, flags which have become a bit wrinkled and flimsy, place a sheet of waxed paper over the flag and iron. Heat from iron will impart a little of wax from the paper to the flag and stiffen it some as well as make it a bit more moisture resistant.

Mrs. Fred G., Chicago—After some years of housekeeping I have learned to keep a few blotters on my cupboard shelf and the moment any one spills any liquid on a rug I blot it up immediately. This is much better than rubbing with a cloth which spreads liquid. Then I dilute any remaining liquid with clear water and blot up again. This has worked well dozens of times in our home.

CUBS LOSE TWO; WHITE SOX BEAT A'S, 5-1, 2-1

QUIZZLE, 15 TO 1 SHOT, CAPTURES PEABODY STAKE

$125,000 Proceeds Go to Charity.

Bet $10,326,027

NEW YORK, May 30 (AP)—Altho racing's first $4,000,000-betting day failed to materialize at Belmont park, a record $10,326,027 was wagered at 12 United States tracks today by an all-time Memorial day turnout of 247,556 fans. The previous high of $8,572,874 was wagered by 151,713 fans at seven tracks on Preakness day, May 13.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

Quizzle, 6 year old son of Milkman-Question, came out of the clouds—a flash of lightning in a rain filled sky—to win the 16th running of the $5,000 Francis S. Peabody Memorial handicap yesterday, featured race of the Lincoln Fields Jockey club's observance of Memorial day at Hawthorne.

The courageous campaigner, overlooked in the betting by a record crowd of 34,406, which was driven to shelter by a downpour just after the finish of the preceding race, went to the post on a sloppy track at odds of 15 to 1 and then swept by the judges' stand just a whisker or two in front of Night Shadow, with Valdina Foe taking the show.

He Pays a Nice Price.

Quizzle, owned by Allen S. Higgins, an Omaha business man, and ridden by Jess Higley of the Ogden, [Utah], Higleys, rewarded his backers with $32.60 for a $2 win ticket, $12.20 to place and $7.60 to show. Night Shadow, owned by Mrs. Robert McGarvey and ridden by George Seabo, paid $9.40 to place and $6 to show. John Marsch's Valdina Foe, with Otto Grohs aboard, paid $6.

The huge crowd showed a willingness to make the holiday an auspicious one for all concerned, including the Red Cross and the Chicago service men's centers, to which the net proceeds of the day were contributed, by starting with the first bugle call an assault on last year's record mutuel handle of $1,135,882. The fans attained their objective before the horses had started their parade for the final event of the eight race program.

It's Over a Million.

The betting for the track's biggest day, one of the largest in the history of the Chicago district, then hit $1,229,087 when the customers shoved $156,296 thru the betting windows on the last event. As a consequence, the Red Cross and the service men's centers' war funds were enriched by approximately $125,000, two-thirds of which goes to the Red Cross, the other third to the service centers.

The throngs of holiday celebrants came early and were loaded for bear. They started fast and closed faster, and, by the time the main event was reached, not even the driving rain could stop them, for many hardy souls were at the rail when little Quizzle did his stuff.

Jockey Higley got him out in front in the mile and a sixteenth event and rated him along to the stretch, when Night Shadow, in hand to the final turn, made her unsuccessful move. Quizzle was still going, but Night Shadow was overtaking him as they hit the camera beam. Another split second and it would have been a dead heat.

Double Pays $491.60.

Long shots started clicking right after the bugle call and the first race saw H. E. Jacoby's Rising Light, ridden by Freddie Smith, come bouncing past the judges' stand with a $15.40 win tag.

That set the stage for a healthy daily double, and sure enough, Cantata, a 24 to 1 shot, won the second under the guidance of Higley and rewarded his backers with $50.80, $17.80, and $11.20. The daily double return consequently was the largest of the meeting, $491.60.

The betting on the third race hit a new high for anything but a stake event race when $165,610 was put up.

WINNER BY A NOSE

52,029 Pour $3,559,097 Thru Mutuels at Belmont Park

New York, May 30 (AP)—Taking advantage of his light weight, A. C. Ernst's Aletern sped over the mile and one quarter in 2:01 1/5 today to whip the highly regarded Sun Again in the 58th suburban handicap as attendance and betting records were hung up at Belmont Park.

The Cleveland-owned 5 year old, turning in the fastest time for the historic race since Whisk Broom set a world record of two minutes flat in 1913, hit the finish line a half-length in front of Sun Again from Warren Wright's Calumet stable, to take the purse of $39,300. Ernst was enriched by an additional $5,000 when his Alquest won third place.

Devil Diver Scratched.

The crowd of 52,029, exceeding by 18 the previous high set on Memorial day two years ago, bet $580,309 on the suburban for a state record for one race and sent the total for the eight races soaring to $3,559,097, only $3,674 short of the world standard. Various war relief organizations and hospitals split the track's profits.

The handicap was robbed of some of its interest when Devil Diver, outstanding challenger for the division's title, was scratched because of a sore foot.

Sun Again, carrying top weight of 128 pounds, as compared to Aletern's 108, made a great bid in the stretch but Jockey Conn McCreary had waited too long. The Calumet Chestnut, 8 to 5 choice, was last in the 11 horse field as Wait a Bit covered the first three-quarters in 1:10 4-5.

Makes Bid Too Late.

Alquest took over the lead after a mile with Herb Lindberg rating Aletern in fourth place and Sun Again a good eight lengths back. A quarter of a mile from the pay-off line, Aletern moved out in front and it appeared as if the entry would be one-two.

But out in the middle of the track Sun Again was flying, reminiscent of Calumet's Whirlaway. Alquest was left behind but Aletern beat off the favorite's belated drive.

Second choice in the wagering, the Ernst combination paid $8.30, $3.30, and $4 across the board, while Sun Again returned $2.90 to place and $2.50 to show.

Henry Smiles at Idea He'll Lose

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Henry Armstrong smiled when told before his boxing drill yesterday that Willie Joyce expects to beat him for the second time when they meet in their third bout of 10 rounds in Chicago Stadium Friday.

Altho the former triple champion, who defeated Joyce after Willie scored an upset over him a year ago last March, is not taking Joyce lightly, he is not worried over Friday's result. He and his manager, George Moore, are looking ahead to additional contests and some lucrative purses. Prospective opponents include Al [Bummy] Davis, Sammy Angott, and John Thomas.

Armstrong and Davis will meet in Madison Square Garden June 9 or 16. Armstrong's clash with Angott is booked for Washington, D. C., and the one with Thomas is listed for Los Angeles.

Armstrong, who is 32, will be trying for his 11th straight victory when he meets Joyce, 1937 Chicagoland Golden Gloves featherweight title holder.

Hank last was defeated by Ray [Sugar] Robinson in the Garden on Aug. 27. He opened his current comeback by knocking out Aldo Spoldi in Portland, Ore., on Jan. 14. His victims since then include Ralph Zanelli [twice], John Thomas, Frankie Wills, Jackie Byrd, Johnny Jones, Jimmy Garrison, Lew Hanbury, and Aaron Perry. All except Wills and Zanelli were knocked out.

In 26 bouts prior to the setback at the hands of Robinson, Armstrong earned half a million dollars in purses. He recently paid the government $20,000 in income taxes for 1943.

BY ARCH WARD.

IT TOOK a war to convince the United States of the necessity of a compulsory physical education program if we are to avoid in the future the mistakes of the past. . . . Athletic departments of schools and colleges have been doing a good job, but for the most part participation in sports has been voluntary. . . . Post-war programs ought to require supervised exercise for all. . . . We mean girls as well as boys. . . . It would be a mistake to make every boy play football, baseball, or tennis. . . . He should have a choice, because he will get greatest benefits from games he enjoys. . . . The form of exercise should be in keeping with a young man's or young woman's physical talents. . . . Those who engage in varsity athletics should be given credit for the time spent in contests and practice. . . . It would be out of order, it seems to this department, to force a young fellow who goes thru the rigors of football training, for example, to turn out for calisthenics with his class. . . . While intelligent direction in physical education is of primary importance in schools and colleges it should not end there if we are to have a healthy nation. . . . Industry is beginning to recognize the value of physical fitness and many war plants and other big organizations have initiated athletic and recreation programs. . . . When we get back to a normal routine of life there will be more time for golf, swimming, walking, horseback riding, and the other activities suitable to men and women past college age. . . . These suggestions are no indictment of so-called "show sports" or athletic spectacles. . . . We want them to grow and prosper. . . . But the foundation from which they spring must be broadened. . . . We hope Uncle Sam never again will have to reject 1,000,000 of the first 2,000,000 men called in selective service as unfit to defend their country. . . . More and more we'll realize that the wealth of a nation is in the strength of its people. . . .

Two pitchers who have hurled no hit games this spring will oppose each other this afternoon when Lou Prempas of Marshall and Gene Revell of Crane take the mound in the championship game of the west section high school league. . . . Adam Walsh, new assistant football coach at Notre Dame, won four Maine championships and tied for three others in eight years as head coach at Bowdoin. . . . Edward Velasquez, Iowa Seahawk two miler, has nearly four years of naval service to his credit, including the battles of Guadalcanal and the Solomons. . . . As a radioman gunner he was attached to the Hornet and Saratoga and, after being shot down at sea, was marooned for six days on an island named Nura which measured only a mile in circumference.

Springtime in the Heart.

Bending an ear, sense the signal to start;
But springtime is only a tedious rhyme
Flitting from limb to limb like a dart,
However pleasing their silvery notes,
Fail to intrigue without spring in the heart.
Flower or snow or the sunshine or the rain,
Something of beauty these all may impart,
Bringing us pleasure and easing our pain,

It Happened in Dubuque.

THE TRIBUNE recently printed a letter from a Chicagoan in which he complained that in Dubuque some weeks before he noticed movies being advertised which only now are showing in Chicago's loop theaters. He asks if something can't be done to remedy the situation. Certainly, sir. Next time the urge to see a brand-new movie overtakes you, just hop the Zephyr and run out to Dubuque. A Reasonable Request.

The other night as I was dozing off
I thought I heard a footstep in my room,
And then there came a sort of muffled cough
As the electric lights dispersed the gloom;
A bandit masked and armed stood by my bed
And his commands were very harsh and curt:
"Don't move or dare to raise your voice," he said,
"Because if you make trouble, you'll get hurt."
"But let me call my wife," I said, "please do!"
"She's heard you every night for twenty years,
And I have had to search the house for you
In an attempt to mitigate her fears;
After so long a time she ought to feel

Giants Defeat North Siders, 6-5 and 5-4

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 30. — The eighth place Cubs who are so versatile they can put together a winning streak or a losing streak with equal ease concentrated on the latter today and with marked success. They were plunked in both ends of a double header by the Giants, much of the mischief being due to a home run demonstration by Mel Ott, the Polo Grounds boss. The scores were 6 to 5 and 5 to 4, chalking up four trimmings in a row for the Charley Grimm tourists since their recent victory march was stopped at seven games.

The Ott home run artistry was particularly severe on Paul Derringer, who operated thru the first six innings of the initial match. The little fellow twice uncorked thumps into the right field seats while the old boy was serving and on each occasion there was a Giant on base.

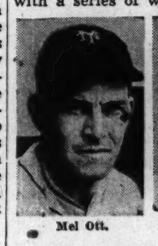
Ott Proves Troublesome.

And by way of good measure Ott singled and scored in the eighth against Rescuer Bill Fleming, thus making his presence felt in five of the New Yorkers' six runs. Not satisfied with this, Ott also hit a homer, his 10th, off Hank Wyse in the second game.

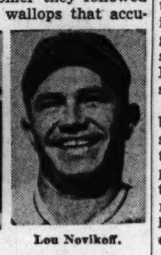
The Cubs also cut in on the home run hilarity but, unfortunately couldn't provide wallops of that nature when mates were on the bases awaiting developments. Bill Nicholson hit his number 5 against Harry Feldman in the first game but Cleanup Bill also fanned four times during the course of the afternoon. Even Lou Novikoff, acting as pinch batter in the first game, discovered that it doesn't take much power to hoist a drive into the right field seats. And Andy Pafko, who was in on the second game because of the presence of Ewald Pyle, a lefty, drilled one over the barrier.

Giants Start Production.

Wyse had the second game well in hand until the fifth when a pair of errors, one of his own making, let the enemy sneak into a 2 to 1 lead. They fixed themselves comfortably in the next inning. Paced by Ott's third homer they followed with a series of wallops that accumulated a total of three runs, Wyse promptly withdrawing from action.



Mel Ott.



Lou Novikoff.

Then the Cubs, having frittered away opportunities of all sorts, finally got into the spirit of the thing in the ninth, but with three home and the tying and winning runs on bases, Rescuer Ace Adams showed 'em the short cut to the clubhouse.

Ott Starts Parade.

Derringer had two men out of the way in the opening inning of the first game before running smack bang into the deadly Ott bat. Just previous to the manager's thump into the near-by seats, Gardella had singled, hence a two run edge for the Giants. The Cubs cut this in half in the next inning when Nicholson hoisted his No. 5 over the barrier in right center. The Giants took back the run in the same inning, Reyes singling and riding in on a triple by Kerr.

The Cubs tied it with two runs in the fourth and might have done much better if Nicholson hadn't been guilty of sabotage. Cavarretta led off with a triple and Goodman walked. Then Nick stepped into the picture and fanned for the first out. Dallessandro poured a single into center to score Cavarretta and Hughes singled to the same spot to send in Goodman. A pass to Johnson loaded the bases, but neither Holm nor Derringer could produce.

It's That Man Again.

Derringer also had two out in the fifth before getting his second jolt from the Gardella-Ott combination. The former singled and the manager hoisted his ninth fourbagger into the right field deck, just inside the foul line, making the score 5 to 3. Lou Novikoff altered this slightly with his pinch homer to right in the eighth but Mickey Kreitner promptly returned the run to the New Yorkers in their half. Ott, who had singled, should have been an easy out at the plate, when he tried to come in on a single by Kerr but Kreitner, after tagging the manager, dropped the ball.

This gift tally rendered useless the ninth inning run scored by the Cubs on singles by Hughes and Johnson.

Pafko Hits Homer.

The Pafko homer started the Cubs off properly in the second inning of the second game, the Coast league graduate picking the fairly distant left center field balcony as a target for his shot. When he came up again in the fourth he plunked the same barrier for a double missing another homer by a matter of inches. It was in this inning that the Giants got into a tie, Hausmann walking and scoring on a single by Weintraub.

15,037 See Newsom Drop Opener.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The White Sox yesterday got delightfully tough with the pennant mad Philadelphia Athletics and ruthlessly cut them down in both ends of a double header before 15,037 in Comiskey park, 5 to 1 and 2 to 1. The winning pitchers were Bill Dietrich and Orval Grove. Dietrich missed a shutout because the A's mixed three singles with two strikeouts in the first game. Grove failed at the blanking business because Ford Garrison bashed a homer with one out in the eighth nning of the second game.

The Sox did not get out of the cellar, but they did help tighten up the American league race again. They gained two games on the leading Yankees, whom they now trail by only 5½ games.

Ed Carnett.

Orval Grove.

Carnett Sox Hitting Hero.

The Chicagoans clicked in the clutches yesterday, as witness the fact they made their five runs in the first game on only six hits and one base on balls, with no hit bigger than a double—and hitting accounted for both runs in the second contest. Eddie Carnett was the hitting star of the afternoon. He drove in the winning run in the first game and both of the runs in the second game, each with a single. He also had a third single in the second match.

Thurman Tucker, American league batting leader, who has been ill since the Sox returned home from their eastern trip ten days ago, played in the second game. He made two singles, scoring the winning run after his first safe hit. He lifted his batting mark from .395 to even .400.

They Beat Mr. Newsom.

Wally Moses knocked a double and a single in each game and Ralph Hodgin found the right bat with a double, two singles and a sacrifice. Grey Clarke had a double in the first game and a single in the second. The last three men in the batting order failed to hit in both games but no one seemed to mind.

The Sox, sometimes criticized for not taking advantage of opportunities, spectacularly went all the other way in the first game against Buck Newsom. They concentrated all their hits in two innings—four in the fourth and two in the eighth—and only one runner was left on base. It was Dietrich's fifth victory. He yielded 11 hits and issued four passes, but was hot stuff in the pinches. The Athletics left an even dozen runners on base.

Moses Opens Rally.

Trailing, 1 to 0, in the first game, the Sox really went to work on the confident Mr. Newsom in the fourth inning. Moses opened with a double to left center. Leroy Schalk sacrificed and Hodgin lined a single to center, scoring Moses with the tying run. Myril Hoag's infield out put Hodgin on second, whence he scored on Carnett's single to center. Newsom lobbed up his ersatz version of the Rip Sewell balloon pitch and Clarke busted it for a double to left, scoring Carnett with the third run.

After Skeeter Webb had flied out in the eighth, Dietrich walked and went to third on Moses' single to

GIANTS DEFEAT CUBS, 6-5, 5-4, ON OTT'S HOMERS

Kerr beat out a hit and Pyle tapped to Wyse who had ample time to force slow motion Lombardi at third. But Wyse dropped the ball as he was about to throw, leaving the bases filled with none out. Lombardi rumbled home on Rucker's fly to Pafko. Then in the sixth Ott unveiled his third homer of the afternoon and two more runs followed on singles by Weintraub, Reis, and Kerr.

Minor Jam in Ninth.

The Cubs threw the Giants into a jam in the ninth after Johnson had taken two bases on a bum throw by Kerr. Johnson scored on a single by Bill Holm. Eddie Stanky also singled, causing the removal of Pyle. Adams closed the disturbance after two more had scored, one on a single by Cavarretta and the other on a fly furnished by Pinch Batter Ival Goodman.

WAR CONTROLS NURTURE BOOM IN REAL ESTATE

Big Demand Shown for Residences.

BY AL CHASE.

Improved Chicago real estate, both residential and commercial, is having one of the most active, but the least spectacular, booms in history, a survey disclosed yesterday. Properties held for many years are being bought by a new type of buyer, who has plenty of war cash and is willing to pay owners big profits. Many parcels are promptly resold at much higher prices.

Altho realty is one of the few commodities which can be bought and sold with few federal restrictions, the present market upsurge (the largest in several years in the total of transactions and in dollar volume) is attributable to various Washington edicts and laws, it was said.

Much Construction Halted.

For example, federal restrictions on new building have stopped all residential construction except in low priced war homes and rebuilding projects. This has resulted in a record shortage of living units with occupancy approximately 100 per cent. Residential properties, despite federal rent control, automatically have become more valuable as they became scarcer to buy.

Federal income taxes also have acted as an accelerator and a deterrent to real estate purchases. Many owners have placed valuable properties on the market to register a big income loss. Other property owners have refused outstandingly tempting offers because the profits would merely be eaten up by increased income taxes.

There has been a steady stream of deals; in single family homes, two flats, walkups, tall elevator apartments, and commercial properties, all sold at varying degrees of profit and many resold at still higher prices.

Big Demand for Residences.

Warner Baird, president of Baird & Warner, said the most activity in residences is in the $10,000 to $20,000 bracket, in which there is no current construction. Inability of many families forced out of big apartments, being cut up into small units for war workers, to find another flat is forcing them to buy residences, he said.

Warner told of several recent deals which netted sellers good profits. A 44 flat building in Juneway ter. bought about four years ago for $100,000 was resold a few days ago at a profit of approximately $10,000 to the seller. A de luxe 12 flat building in Rogers Park bought in 1940 for $47,500 was sold recently for $55,000. Many three story walkups [apartments without elevators] have been sold recently at profit of from 20 to 75 per cent, he said.

Leonard O'Brien, assistant sales manager for McKey & Poague, said that because of income taxes many owners were turning down offers which would have netted them big profits. The owners of the 24 flat building at 6952-54 Clyde av., who bought it three years ago for $80,000, recently were offered $100,000 and refused to sell, he said.

Profit Sales Reported.

Recent profit taking sales reported by O'Brien included a two flat at 7550 Indiana av., bought in 1941 for $8,500, and sold a few days ago for $10,500, and a bungalow purchased by O'Brien in 1939 for $5,300 and sold by him last year for $7,500. He is negotiating to sell for $9,500 a south shore residence which he bought for $7,250 and on which he spent $1,000 remodeling.

Clifford Swan, of Swan-Lorish, Inc., said the demand for apartment buildings was larger than the supply for sale, with many sales being made at big profits. One six flat building in Hyde Park was bought six months ago for $21,000 and a few days ago was resold at a $5,000 profit. Another flat building purchased at $45,000 recently changed hands at $60,000, he said.

The upward trend also is noticeable in business properties. An offer of $355,000 was made last summer for the L shaped property at 3-7 N. Clark st. and 70-76 W. Madison st. It was not accepted and another was made at $370,000. After a refusal to sell at that price it was sold for $450,000.

The land below the three story Karpen building at the southeast corner of Wabash av. and 8th st. was bought by Julius P. Sacks in March for $135,000. A month later he sold it for $155,000.

The federal housing administration and most of the mortgage bankers have tried to hold down appraisals to pre-boom levels.

Fahey Warns of Danger in Realty Upturn

New Orleans, La., May 30 [Special]. —John H. Fahey, commissioner of the federal home loan bank administration, today warned of a danger to the nation's economic wellbeing from an inflation of prices on homes and real estate which has been taking place over the last year and a half. He addressed the National Savings and Loan league at its first war conference.

John H. Fahey.

Fahey cited specifically the sales of 1,300 home properties by Home Owners' Loan corporation borrowers at prices averaging 17 per cent higher than the HOLC valuations of a decade ago.

Valuations Were Liberal.

"As we all know, the valuations were liberal," Fahey said. "There was practically no market at the time HOLC was taking over distressed loans from 1933 thru 1936. The 1,300 homes mentioned were more than 20 years old and, while it may be argued that in some cases increased appraisals represented only a reasonable return to normal values, this contention can be sustained in but few instances. Most of the houses have not been maintained adequately for years and consideration must be given to neighborhood changes and other factors which reduce values."

Fahey said it is difficult to determine accurately the average percentage of inflation in home prices thruout the country since 1940 but in his judgment it is at least 25 to 30 per cent over safe values.

"We have numerous cases where sales are 40 to 50 per cent above reasonable prices as of the beginning of 1941," he continued. "There are some boosts even more extreme.

Loan Values Too High.

"Mortgage loans are being made in connection with these sales in most cases in proportion to the sales price. They are being made by all classes of institutions. It is nonsense for any one group of lending institutions or any trade association representing them to claim that they are free from guilt in connection with inflated lending and that the 'other fellow' is causing all the trouble.

"We have cases of record where lending institutions which claim to be among the most conservative in the United States are making home mortgage loans in plain violation of the state laws under which they operate."

TECHNICOLOR, INC.

I would appreciate a report on Technicolor, Inc. H. C.

Answer: The company, incorporated in 1922, is the pioneer in development of color photography, and its process leads the field by a wide margin.

Technicolor holds many United States and foreign patents, and has a cross-licensing agreement with Eastman Kodak, with which it cooperates in color photography research.

The popularity of color movies has brought a steady increase in their production by motion picture companies, and production costs, high by comparison with ordinary black and white movies, are being brought down by improved processes that lower the cost of the film itself.

Technicolor's shipments of prints reached a peak at 127.7 million feet last year after war restrictions and a shortage of skilled personnel in 1942 had caused a break in a long rise.

Net income for 1943, before renegotiation, amounted to $1,103,704, equal to $1.22 a share, against $370,355, or 41 cents a share, for 1942. Because of a credit carryover, only $14,453 of excess profits tax was incurred in 1943. Per share net for 1941 was $1.05; 1940, 99 cents; 1939, $1.08 and 1938, $1.25.

Capitalization consists solely of 897,873 shares of no par stock. The company paid an initial dividend of 50 cents a share in 1936, and paid 75 cents in 1937, $1 in 1938 and 1939, 75 cents in 1940, $1 in 1941, 25 cents in 1942, and 50 cents in 1943.

SLUM CLEARING BY COMPETITIVE PLANNING URGED

A competitive method for private enterprise to redevelop deteriorated areas in urban communities was outlined yesterday by Alfred Rheinstein, vice president of the New York Building congress and president of the Rheinstein Construction company, before a meeting of the Associated General Contractors of America, Inc., in the Drake hotel.

The local planning commission should designate an area for total replanning which embraces a cross-section of community life, where the structures for the most part are obsolete and depreciated, and where business has declined, he said. Then two prequalified groups would submit comprehensive schemes for the redevelopment, of which one would be chosen. Planning should be for the entire physical development of the area and provide for every activity it may properly and profitably accomodate, he said.

SEC PROPOSES STANDARD GAS PLAN REVISIONS

Philadelphia, Pa., May 30 (AP)—The sercurities and exchange commission today suggested amendments to Standard Gas and Electric company's plan of reorganization, filed in March, 1943, and granted the company 90 days in which to make the necessary changes.

The company's plan proposed the distribution of common stock in two subsidiaries, California Oregon Power company and Mountain States Power company, as well as shares of a new class A common stock and 30 million dollars in cash to holders of nearly 60 million dollars principal amount of debentures. The cash was to be raised thru a 21 million dollar bank loan and the sale of portfolio securities.

SECRET OF SYNTHETIC RUBBER NAMED, BUT REMAINS A MYSTERY

New York, May 30 (AP).—The corner of the curtain guarding one of the "prime secrets" of the synthetic rubber program—called OEI or the "one essential ingredient" which controls the formation of a rubberlike product from butadiene and styrene—was lifted today by United States Rubber company, but the secret remained well kept.

United States Rubber, with approval of government authorities, disclosed the ingredient is an extract of a natural, or vegetable, oil, as compared with the derivation from petroleum, grain alcohol or gases of the major components of synthetic rubber.

What part of what natural oil is used, the announcement declined to say. It did say the material, which regulates the growth of the giant chains of molecules that form synthetic rubber, was so important that too little of it resulted in a soupy mess, while too much made the final product stiff and unworkable.

SENATE DELAYS DEBATE ON PRICE CURB EXTENSION

Washington, D. C., May 30 (AP).—Senate consideration of the price control extension bill which carries a cotton textile pricing amendment objectionable to the OPA was deferred today until next Monday.

Chairman Wagner [D., N. Y.] announced after a session of the senate banking committee that original plans to begin debate Thursday had been dropped. The committee approved the bill last night but met again today to draft a report.

Holds Natural Rubber Won't Meet Demand

New York, May 30 [Special].—The world may face a tight rubber situation for nearly four years after the war unless synthetic output in the United States is expanded further, Dr. Ray P. Dinsmore, vice president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, said here today. He spoke before the National Association of Purchasing Agents.

Ray P. Dinsmore.

Dr. Dinsmore, who is head of Goodyear's research and development departments, based his statement on the probability that natural rubber production will not be resumed as fast as has been hoped.

"No one can say with certainty when the plantation areas will be recovered," Dr. Dinsmore said. "Undoubtedly steps will be taken for their rapid rehabilitation. Even so, small native estates will be the first to produce because of simple equipment.

Redevelopment to Be Tedious.

"The reorganization of labor and replacement of equipment on large estates will be a difficult and tedious job. The attitude of the natives may be uncooperative and international disputes are not unlikely. It is expected, therefore, that after complete repossession the first year will not produce over 400,000 tons and the second year not more than 700,000 tons. It may require two more years to reach 1,500,000 tons output."

Dr. Dinsmore said this view is quite different from the one frequently expressed that after the war the market will be flooded with cheap crude which will drive synthetic rubber out of existence. Synthetic must not only meet war needs but be able to cope with a large portion of post-war requirements and all the changed conditions under which rubber products will be used, he declared.

Tells of Time Element.

"It is evident that synthetic rubber has five or six years more in which to become competitive, in cost and quality, with the natural rubber," he continued. "Can any informed individual doubt that this is sufficient time?"

Dr. Dinsmore warned that if synthetic rubber production is to reach the volume indicated as a post-war possibility many materials must be provided in larger quantities than now.

"Such items as carbon black, rubber accelerators, and rayon fabric are used in larger quantities with synthetic than with natural rubber," he explained. "In some cases the productive capacities are inadequate or are being supplied on an emergency conversion basis."

RECORD PROFITS IN 1943 SHOWN BY INSURED BANKS

Washington, D. C., May 30 (AP).—The 13,274 insured commercial banks reported net profits of 638 million dollars in 1943, the largest total since the start of deposit insurance.

Chairman Crowley of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, announcing the figure today, said it represents an increase of 197 million dollars, 45 per cent above 1942, and a return of 8.6 per cent on total capital accounts, another new high in FDIC history.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., May 30.—The biggest shell production program in Canada's history has ended any hopes for partial reconversion of Canadian plants to the production of durable consumer goods, government officials disclosed today.

"Man power and materials are in tighter supply today than ever before in Canada, and there isn't the slightest prospect of any increase in production of durable consumer goods," one official said.

Canceled or Curtailed.

Fifteen per cent of Canada's total steel supply will be needed to meet the additional demand for shells. Modest programs for the production of washing machines, electric irons, ranges, and other articles, which had been planned earlier, have been either canceled or curtailed materially as a result.

Canadian plants were scheduled to produce 1,800 electric washing machines by the end of June, "but we aren't going to get that many," said a war time prices and trade board official. Ten per cent will be for export purposes.

No electric refrigerators will be made, but a few ice boxes are to be constructed. Canada's stockpile of electric refrigerators is near an end.

Will Produce Ranges.

About three-fourths of the 7,000 ranges and rangettes authorized for production this year will be made, however. Permits have been issued for 100,000 electric irons, but officials said that the large manufacturers will not be able to touch these orders and there will be only a handful produced by the smaller manufacturers who are not tied up with war contracts.

No vacuum cleaners or carpet sweepers will be produced despite earlier plans to manufacture some this year.

The shell production program, which will reach its peak about midsummer, is responsible for the heavy drain on man power and copper, as well as the already critically short supply of sheet steel.
